Legislature OKs Office For the Aging

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

In spite of the Ulster County Senior Citizen's Alliance determination to direct its own business, Ulster County Legislature Thursday night voted 25 to 8 to apply to the state for a county office for the aging.

When application is approved, Ulster will receive about $72,000 for the program under which it is mandatory that a director and staff be hired. The proposal was recommended by chairman of the county Program for the Aging Committee George Sisti (R-Dist. 8), on behalf of the committee.

A last ditch effort by alliance president, Mrs. Antoinette Tennant to convince the legislature that by applying for a county office for the aging it was inviting bureaucracy and waste, failed to dissuade the 25 who voted for the measure. Proponents and opponents both heaped praise on the work of the alliance but those favoring the new office felt that if Ulster ignored the funds available through the state, that some other county would get them. Currently there are only 15 out of 62 counties that do not have county offices for the aging.

Before the resolution passed, it was amended at the suggestion of Willaim R. West (R-Dist.4) who asked that present county personnel be utilized to staff the office, with the exception of the director.

It was also pointed out that an effort will be made to secure a director who is a senior citizen. In addition the county will continue all contracts and programs it now has with the alliance and Ulster County Community Action Committee which provides recreation and nutritional programs for the elderly.

Related Legislature story on page 12.

Some of those voting in favor of the office were apparently motivated to some extent by the fact that the state "blackmailed" the county into accepting its proposal for the office for the aging. Several legislators including Philip Davis (R-Dist.5), Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist.6) and Thomas Roach (R-Dist.8) said that the state was twisting the county's arm in that it indicated it would not continue to fund recreational and educational programs for the senior citizens here unless the office for the aging were established.

Those opposed to creation of the office said they were representing the sentiments of their constituency, that the alliance was doing a wonderful job of managing its own affairs and that the county doesn't need anymore bureaucracy than it has.

Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist.2) said senior citizens in his district are opposed to the office, that 90 members of the Town of Ulster GOP voted against it and that "the $72,000 is coming out of the same pocket. If the people in the county want to run programs for seniors they can do it in a better manner than if Big Brother in Albany is telling them what to do."

Richard D. Nace (R-Dist.2) said he has been trying to get the office for five and one-half years, and he wants to "get the money for the people who have been footing the bills for years (senior citizens.")

George Barthel (D-Dist.7) revealed that three Wawarsing senior citizen clubs favored the measure while Eugene Houck (D-Dist.7) suggested that the proposal does not spell out everything it should.

Those voting against the office included: Elmendorf, Lewis Hall (R-Dist.5), Stephen Hyatt (R-Dist.2), George Kirk (R-Dist.4), C. Freeman Lasher (R-Dist.1), Charles Scala (R-Dist.1), Clifford W. Snyder (R-Dist.1) and Richard Thornton (D-Dist.1)

Voting for the office were: Sisti, West, Dbrosky, Davis, Roach, Nace, Barthel, Houck, Louis Bevier (R-Dist.8), James Carroll (D-City), John H. Dwyer (D-City) Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist.5), James Gilpatric (D-City), Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City), S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist.5), Louis M. Klein (D-Dist.6) Lewis C. Kirschner (D-City), Larry Kithcart (D-City), Robert H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist.7) Eugene K. Noe (R-Dist.8), James Palen (R-Dist.8), Eugene Perry (D-City), Louis Resnick (D-Dist.7), Pter J. Savago (R-Dist.8) and Brian R. White (D-Dist.8).

The celebration was shortlived, however; a short time later the rebel soldiers began evacuation procedures that virtually left the Cambodian capital a ghost town. (UPI)

Conquered Phnom Penh . . . City to Ghost Town

By RICHARD BOYLE

BANGKOK (UPI) — The Khmer Rouge arrived in the Cambodian capital as conquering heroes, but shortly afterward turned Phnom Penh into a ghost town.

When Phnom Penh fell April 17, I was among nearly 1,000 foreigners who made their way to the French Embassy compound. We were later evacuated to Thailand in road convoys.

At 10 a.m. the battle slackened enough to encourage a few Cambodians to venture out into the square in front of the embassy to talk to the Khmer Rouge.

There was quiet conversation for a few minutes, and then someone started cheering. Within moments, the square seemed to be filled with hundreds of people, many of them young.

They shouted and waved white flags that they obviously had kept ready for the moment. They startled some of the Khmer Rouge by swarming around them.

A sniper fired toward the crowd from somewhere and everyone scattered for cover. But the sniper did not stay long, and soon the square was filled again.

But the welcome did not last long.

In the afternoon the Khmer Rouge circulated through Phnom Penh with loudspeakers, telling the people to leave for the countryside.

For several days we watched as the city's population — swollen to well over 1 million at war's end —went past in a steady procession, clutching their meager possessions.

Some went in cars and some were in ox carts, but most walked. Patients, ordered out of hospitals, were accompanied by relatives.

One Khmer Rouge official we met later during our truck convoy trip to Thailand told us the new government had moved the people from the towns into the countryside so they could learn to live like peasants.

Even intellectuals would do farm labor for an unspecified period of time, he said. He said they would be allowed to return to the city later.

Food, Car Prices Rising

By UPI

Americans are going to have to pay more for food and new cars. It's inevitable, experts say.

The Agriculture Department said food prices will rise 6 to 8 percent by the end of the year, and Ford Motor's top executives said 1976 model cars will be priced 3 to 6 percent higher than 1975 models.

The predictions followed a report Thursday by the Labor Department that wholesale prices rose in April after four consecutive months of decline. The White House said the increase means "inflation is by no means licked."

Wholesale prices of farm products jumped 6.7 per cent last month, the Department said, in reversal of a trend began last December toward lower farm prices.

In a separate report, Agriculture said food prices would be 6 to 8 percent higher by the end of the year —if the harvest is good. During 1973 and 1974, food prices rose an average of 14.5 percent.

James T. Schmuck, vice president of Del Monte Corp., told the Conference Board, a business research group, that food prices will be pushed up by higher labor, energy, transforation and packaging costs. "There's no way we can have cheaper food when most production costs are on the rise," Schmuck said.

In Dearborn, Mich., Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co, and Lee Iacocca, president, told newsmen that 1976 model cars could cost from $200 to $250 more than 1975 models. "Price increases are a foregone conclusion," Ford said. "They're inevitable."

But, he said, anticipation of higher prices for the '76 models might spur sales of 1975 models, which are lagging.

Since January, 1974, General Motors has supplemented the unemployment benefits of idled autoworkers to the tune of $400 million, under a contract requirement with the United Auto Workers.

The fund provided furloughed workers with 95 percent of their regular take-home pay. But this week, the fund ran dry.

"We're confronted with one helluva problem," said Don Ellis, a UAW regional director in Flint, the heart of GM country north of Detroit. "I can only hope we're prepared for it."

The SUB payments ran out last April at Chrysler.

School Pollution . . . On Site Inspection

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

Although the chlorination treatment system at the Port Ewen Elementary School has been repaired, an inspection Thursday afternoon revealed that three other schools in the Kingston Consolidated District —M. Clifford Miller, Lake Katrine and Anna Devine—are illegally discharging untreated sewage.

Although there is apparently no way of telling how long the situation has existed, the condition of the three units seems to indicate that they have been out of operation for a prolonged period of time.

In addition, the chlorination system at the Hurley Elementary School— revealed earlier this week to be inoperative—remains out of service.

Two Ulster County Health Department engineers, Dave Ryder and Ray Yesselman, inspected four schools located outside the city Thursday afternoon. They were accompanied by two school district officials: Kenneh Bonville, superintendent of buildings and grounds, and John Rice, director of maintenance, as well as a Freeman reporter.

The chlorination units at the M. Clifford School were the first ones inspected Thursday. Both were found to be inoperative; as a result, sewage from the two schools was being discharged into the Esopus Creek without proper chlorination treatment.

The unit at the Lake Katrine school had been badly corroded by chlorine gas. Maintenance workers were at the scene Thursday attempting to repair the unit; Bonville said that when it is put in working condition it will be transferred to the Hurley School. The unit at the Miller school was likewise found to be in a deteriorated and corroded condition.

Both those schools are scheduled to be tied in to the Town of-Ulster Sewer Improvement Area, which would eliminate the need for chlorination treatment. Ryder suggested Thursday that the school district take immediate steps to connect the two schools to the public sewers.

In the meantime, Bonville assured the health department officials that "every effort" would be made to repair the unit at the Miller school, until such time that the school is hooked up to the public sewers.

Bonville also noted that representatives of the firm that manufactures the chlorination units was scheduled to inspect the sites today to determine what new parts will be needed.

The same situation—although apparently not as serious—was found to exist at the Anna Devine School in Rifton. There, untreated sewage was being discharged into a small stream that eventually leads to the Wallkill River.

An inspeciton at the Zena Elementary School revealed that waste water from the school was being accepted directly into a leaching field, foregoing the need for any chlorination treatment. But Ryder pointed out that when the field becomes saturated, the overflow that will be discharged into the Sawkill Creek will have to be treated with chlorine. In the interim, Bonville said that unit, which is brand new, may be moved to the Hurley School.

Ryder made two additional suggestions to school district officials Thursday, both of which would offer protection from the highly lethal chlorine gas that is supposed to be used to treat the sewage. He suggested that ventilation fans be installed at each chlorination building, and said that it might be a wise idea—especially because of the proximity of school children to the units—that the district consider converting to a safer and less troublesome hypo-chlorination treatment system.

Ryder noted that the health department will continue to make "spot inspections" to determine if the school district is doing all it can to repair the treatment units.

A Hero 20 Years Ago, Jonas Salk Still Seeks to Serve

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Twenty years ago, Dr. Jonas Salk stood in the Rose Garden of the White House and heard President Dwight Eisenhower praise him as a "benefactor of mankind" for developing a vaccine which has all but eradicated the dread childhood disease of polio.

Forty years old at the time, a mild and soft spoken scientist, Salk seemed embarrassed by the acclaim both from the public and fellow scientists for an achievement which will go down in the annals of medicine.

"It was just another job to be done in a field in which I had an interest," Salk said at the time.

Salk had spent six grueling, painstaking years at his laboratory at the University of Pittsburgh, testing the infantile paralysis viruses over and over again. When doubts were raised that the vaccine might cause polio rather than prevent it, Salk injected the virus into the veins of his own three small sons.

A full year after his own youngsters were immunized, more than a million American school children participated in mass testing in 1954 before the vaccine was hailed as a complete success.

Salk dropped out of the limelight for a number of years until 1963, when he found the Salk Institute for Biological Studies overlooking the Pacific here. He is still director and spends most of his time here.

The chief objective of the Institute has been research into the causes, prevention and control of cancer with top scientists in the field following their own particular avenues. Salk himself has engaged in cancer research but spends much time in administration duties.

In 1968, Salk was divorced from his wife of 30 years. In 1970, he was married to the former mistress of the late painter Pablo Picasso. They spend a considerable part of their time in Europe.

Salk recently declined an interview, saying he had nothing really new to say at this time.

A few years ago he told a UPI correspondent that he decieded on founding the institute after talking to some of the physicists who had developed the atom bomb and wanted to do constructive work.

"It seemed to me at that point in my career when I had just been through a rather unusual experience and still had some ideas . . . that I would like to create a place for myself and others to work," he said.

Church Disclaims Holy Visions

NECEDAH, Wis. (UPI) — Shortly after her husband died, Mrs. Mary Ann Van Hoof says, she saw the Virgin Mary.

It was Nov. 12, 1949.

In the years that followed, Mrs. Van Hoof, a Roman Catholic, reported other sightings. On Aug. 15, 1950, 100,000 persons from around the world journeyed to her shrine to witness another sighting.

That same year, the late Bishop John P. Treacy conducted an investigation and issued a decree saying the "visions of Mrs. Van Hoof were without supernatural foundation and must be considered false claims."

Attendance at her yearly sightings dwindled. In 1972, Bishop Frederick Freking, who succeeded Treacy, reinforced that decree.

But Mrs. Van Hoof continued to insist upon the truth of her statements. Freking said she and her followers caused "continuous disruptions of parish life and in the civic community."

Freking issued an order of interdiction Monday against Mrs. Van Hoof and six of her followers.

Interdiction —one step short of excommunication —cuts the individual off from all the sacraments of the church except confession, through which they can return to the good graces of the church.

"A personal interdiction is not excommunication but it does cut them off from the life of the church," Freking said.

"It denies them the privileges of the church, such as receiving holy communion."

"Their basic sin is their defiance of the supreme authority of the church, which they've been doing for the last 25 years," Freking added.

Mrs. Van Hoof, now 71, who said the Virgin Mary spoke to her, has not addressed the pilgrims who visited the shrine in recent years, because of the decree ordering her not to publicize her visions.

Freking did nothing about Mrs. Van Hoof when he took office several years ago.

"I was rather quiet about the matter for a few years and said nothing," the bishop said. "But they interpreted my silence as tacit approval and I had to do something."

ESKA Declares Impasse

KINGSTON — The 190 Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area (ESKA), all employed by the Kingston school district, have declared an impasse in contract negotiations with the district and have called on the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) for mediation.

Gilbert Rashbaum, Newburgh attorney representing the secreraries, stated in a press release that negotiations had begun in early April but had completely broken down.

He claimed that William Turcotte, negotiator for the board, had "reneged" on precedural agreements and had refused to follow procedures set by agreement at the April 16 meeting.

According to Rashbaum, Turcotte said he "would not be bound by his agreement because he had not reduced it to writing." At this point on April 24 the secretaries refused to proceed until "Turcotte honored his word and obligations."

Members of ESKA are employed as clerical, secretarial, monitoring, printing machine operating, and teacher aide workers.

Turcotte told a different story to the Freeman.

Noting that it was ESKA, not the board, that had declared the impasse, he said he would be "willing to go back to the table." He explained that only three of nine procedural point had originally been agreed to and that an exploration of definitions in the contract had begun after the two factions could not agree on prodedure to give the procedural issue a rest.

Turcotte said he then showed up for the April 30 scheduled meeting and no representatives of the ESKA showed up.

Yosman Commended

George E. Yerry Jr., chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority, has commended Alexander Yosman, executive director, for his "expertise and knowledge" in bringing to a successful conclusion the program to develop 100 units of senior citizen apartments on the St. Ann property on Broadway. Approval has been received from the Department of Housing and Development for the project, Yerry said.

Cong Wants U.S. to Return 'Forcibly Evacuated' Vietnamese

By UPI

The Viet Cong rulers of South Vietnam asked the United States today to return home all those Vietnamese it said were forcibly evacuated from the country, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Hanoi. It said such evacuation was a crime.

The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government accused the Americans of forcing 80,000 Vietnamese, mostly women, children and old men, to leave the country and alleged that in some cases they used chloroform to put the people into the ships bound for Guam.

The PRG Foreign Ministry said the United States must provide transportation to enable all those Vietnamese who wish to return to South Vietnam. It said a number of ships packed with evacuees have messaged that the refugees are in poor condition and that the lives of 200 children are in danger because of hunger and exhaustion.

On Guam, George Corndon Lennox, one of two members of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees there, said the UNHCR is exploring ways to repatriate South Vietnamese refugees who wanted to return to their homeland. He said the problem probably will take some time as will the problem of trying to reunite families separated in the Vietnam exodus.

The Tanjug report was one of several anti-American reports from Hanoi today. However delayed UPI dispatches from Saigon reported the Viet Cong had promised to provide favorable conditions for foreign correspondents there and that they would protect all lawabiding foreigners in the country.

One broadcast sharply criticized the United States and Thailand for what Hanoi called unsavory tricks which allowed a U.S. Navy aircraft carrier to repossess 106 aircraft left in Thailand by fleeing South Vietnamese pilots.

Another said the collapse of South Vietnam and Cambodia has ended U.S. influence throughout the world and will lead to a period of "de-Americanization" in Asia. The broadcast monitored in Bangkok said socialism "has become the most important element with regard to world development" while capitalism "has suffered heavy losses."

Tanjug said a ship with 540 political prisoners freed from "tiger cages" on Con Son island in the South China sea, has sailed into the port of Vung Tau, Southeast of Saigon.

Hanoi said the former Saigon regime and the United States had imprisoned 6,000 persons on Con Son and held them there without trial. With the fall of Saigon all 1,000 guards on the island surrendered to the Communist Viet Cong forces and the camp has been closed and the prisoners returning to their families.

"Vietnam became a place for the testing of the strength and prestige of American imperialism," the broadcast said, adding that America's 20-year involvement in Vietnam "clearly proved that strength is limited."

"America's defeat in Indochina and the crisis in America —a direct result of the war — prove that America will never be able to play the role of an international policeman, or even a regional policeman," Radio Hanoi said.

It said the people of Southeast Asia demanded separation from American control and the abolishment of American military bases in that part of the world.

"De-Americanization, or throwing the Americans out, and the regaining of national independence, is an increasingly stronger struggle of the Southeast Asian countries," the broadcast said. "The pro-American forces will be eliminated."

In Saigon, the new Viet Cong government promised to provide "favorable conditions" for foreign correspondents in South Vietnam.

The leader of the Military Management Committee running Saigon said the Communists would protect all lawabiding foreigners in the country.

"The Military Management Commission will undertake to ensure the safety and create favorable conditions for foreign media people in Saigon to carry on their activities," Gen. Tran Van Tra said Thursday.

Radio Saigon, in a broadcast monitored in Bangkok, said Gen. Tra made the promise during a speech to about 100 journalists, including foreign correspondents.

The general accused the United States of forcibly evacuating South Vietnamese adults and children from the country last mor'h as the Communists tightened their ring around Saigon.

"There were numerous cases of forcible evacuation of adults and forcible abduction of children," he said. "The United States odiously whipped up stories of a 'bloodbath' in Saigon in a bid to force many Vietnamese to flee to foreign countries."

Tra admitted the new military government faced problems in establishing a new administration in South Vietnam. "But these difficulties are nothing compared with those our people have known over the last 30 years of war," he said.

He said the people "will surely have the spirit, wisdom and capabilities to settle every problem so as to quickly restore and firmly develop the normal life of the country.

"Our people how have independence and peace and the consciousness of being the master of their destiny, and they will have everything," he said.

Tra said the biggest task in Saigon was to "normalize" city life. He said his committee would do its best to keep order in the city and "settle all other problems."

In other developments, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said Thursday a 27-ship South Vietnamese naval squadron led by an admiral had surrendered to the Viet Cong.

The warships, carrying high-ranking officers of the defeated Saigon government, surrendered after being promised amnesty, Tanjug reported.

The squadron, which had been sailing off the South Vietnamese coast, gave up hours after Gen. Tra pledged the new regime "will forgive completely" all repentant troops in the defeated armed forces.

Phnom Penh... City of Terror

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A Swedish journalist said today the Khmer Rouge capture of Phnom Penh three weeks ago turned the Cambodian capital into a city of terror.

Herman Lindqvist, a correspondent for the Stockholm newspaper Expressen, said joy over the end of the war turned to fear soon after the conquerors shut down Phnom Penh's communications with the rest of the world.

"Then came terror and the nightmares began," he said.

Lindqvist, who was recently evacuated from Cambodia after being trapped when the Khmer Rouge seized Phnom Penh April 17, made his remarks in the first of a series of articles from Bangkok.

He said the first jubilant Khmer Rouge troops to enter the capital were followed by grim soldiers who "did not laugh."

"They opened fire," he wrote. "They shot in the air and along the street."

Lindqvist said the conquerors ordered residents by loudspeaker to leave the capital immediately but failed to explain where the people should go.

"If any of the confused people hesitated, one in a group was shot so that the others knew that the (orders) were for real," he said.

Lindqvist was one of a handful of foreign newsmen who stayed in Cambodia after the Khmer Rouge takeover and took refuge in the French embassy. He had refused to write anything about his experiences until all other foreigners left.

The Swedish correspondent said he saw young Khmer Rouge soldiers stop fleeing refugees at gunpoint and take watches and radios from them.

"The guerrillas went into stores and took food, medicine, watches and alcohol," he said. "They wanted motorcycles, cars and bicycles."

The Refugees Keep Pouring In

Thousands more refugees fleeing the Communists in South Vietnam and Cambodia today poured into camps stretching from Guam to Florida, heartened by congressional action on funds to help them start new lives in America.

Camp Pendleton, the "Little Saigon" in California bulging with about 18,000 members of America's newest minority group, began shunting refugees to Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Ten flights to Eglin today pushed that center over its planned capacity of 2,500. Ft. Chaffee, Ark., was operating at about half its 20,000 capacity, with more arrivals expected.

About 10,000 of the 75,000 refugees to arrive on Guam since the airlift began two weeks ago were awaiting transportation to the West Coast and 3,500 more were due at Guam and Wake Island today. About 9,000 sailed from Subic Bay in the Philippines Thursday for Guam.

Uncertainty about the influx of an estimated 120,000 refugees from war-torn Southeast Asia was eased Thursday by congressional approval of resettlement funds.

The Senate passed a "Good Samaritan" resolution authorizing $17 million in leftover military aid for resettlement. The House Judiciary Committee promised President Ford all the money he needs for the program and the House appropriations subcommittee approved a $405 million bill.

Action by the House was expected on both bills Wednesday.

Rondout Paper Mill Operating . . . DEC Plans Close Watch

KINGSTON — The Rondout Paper Mill in Napanoch is back in operation—apparently without the discharge of any pollutants—but the Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) has promised that it will keep a close watch on the facility.

On April 28, state conservation officers cited Pearl Tissue, Inc., the new owners of the mill, for illegally discharging pollutants into the Rondout Creek without a permit. The DEC, in its complaint, said essentially that the discharges must stop, even if it means closing the mill.

Town of Wawarsing Justice Joseph Polonsky initially adjourned the case; this week he ruled that the mill could remain open as long as the company continued its efforts to make the operation environmentally safe.

"The mill still has many, many problems," said Polonsky, "but I am satisfied that Pearl Tissue is making every effort to correct those problems. If those efforts continue, I don't see any reason for further action."

Max Beagleman, president of Pearl Tissue, told the Freeman that his engineers have worked weekends and nights to correct the deficiencies. "There are still things to be done," he said, "but we're operating now and there are no discharges into the creek."

Beagleman said that two major projects have already been completed: outlets from the mill to the creek have been closed and heavier pumps have been installed to recycle pulp wastes.

James Gormley, Pearl Tissue's general manager, said he hopes to establish a completely enclosed recycling system within three months. He added that the company is in the process contracting with an engineering firm to perform the necessary work, and that price and time estimates for the project should be available in a week or two.

Company officials also noted that they are in the process of applying for a SPDES (State Pollutant Discharge Elimination System) permit, which is required of any company or structure that discharges pollutants into a waterway.

DEC officials, howver, are still suggesting that that is something the company should, and could, have done before the mill was opened two weeks ago. But the state agency nevertheless appears reasonably confident that the matter can be resolved.

Larry Vernon, legal counsel for the DEC's Region III office in New Paltz, told the Freeman Thursday that the deprtment's primary interest is seeing that the discharges are halted. Vernon said that it appears that the company is, in fact, taking steps to permanently eliminate the pollution. He emphasized, however, that conservation officers will continue to inspect the facility on a daily basis to guarantee that the situation does not occur again.

The matter of legal penalties, however, is still pending. The company faces a maximum daily fine of $2,500 for two citations dealing with alleged violations of environmental laws. Polonsky has adjourned that matter until June 2, at which time the company will be asked to describe exactly what steps it has taken to conform to the law.

School Board Names Gaffney

KINGSTON — The Kinston Board of Education quietly and without comment Wednesday night appointed incumbent school district attorney Charles H. Gaffney to another year in the $12,000 post.

The action was in distinct contrast to Gaffney's first appointment to the post in July 1974, at what Joseph Feraca Jr., then president of the board, referred to as a "closed" meeting.

Two other attorneys had been in line for the postion: Joseph Hill, the attorney in 1973-74; and Richard Griggs, whose name was put forth by current board president Ward Todd. The board voted 4-3 in favor of Griggs with one abstention but no appointment was made because neither man received a majority of the nine-member board vote.

The board had previously contacted the Ulster County Bar Association asking that candidates apply for the job, and received 13 responses. The Personnel Committee, then chaired by Todd, screened the applicants and came up with Griggs and Gaffney in that order. Gaffney was appointed by a 7-1 vote with Mrs. Marianne Darrow opposed.

The board referred to the Building Committee for study a resolution by Mrs. Darrow calling for the district to employ an architect and conduct a study of the renovation of the present Kingston High School complex on Broadway.

"The Tuesday night (school board) vote was a mandate against a new high school, " Mrs. Darrow said after the meeting. "This leaves us with only one alternative—renovation of the present high school. I want the work to start immediately without waiting for anything else to happen so the new board will find the project already under way."

Her resolution calls for renovations to begin as soon as the study is completed and bids can be let.

The board also established a $43.49 rate per pupil for health services provided for pupils attending non-public schools in the City of Kingston.

The administration, in a memorandum to board members, explained how the figure was derived. Salaries of $418,603 were added to $113,369 in employe benefits and $13,050 in other expenses for a total program cost of $545,022. This was divided by the 12,532 (11,005 public school and 1,527 non-public school) pupils to derive the $43.49 cost per pupil.

The board also approved a lengthy list of amendments to the bargaining agreement with the Kingston Teacher Federation, approved $5,000 to establish a program called "Imprving Social Studies for Emotionally Handicapped Persons," and heard Louis A. Salzmann, superintendent of schools, praise the 150 senior and junior high school students who volunteered to aid with the recent Special Olympics.

City Men Arrested

KINGSTON — Two Kingston men named in sealed indictments handed up by an Ulster County Grand Jury last week were arrested Wednesday by city police and were arraigned in county court on the burglary charges of the indictment.

Charged with third degree burglary were Peter Ferraro, 34, of 3 Cedar Street, and Michael Cecelia, 25, of 56 Sycamore Street.

The charges stemmed from an alleged break-in several weeks ago at the manager's office at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The pair were scared off before anything was taken in the burglary, according to officials.

Judge Raymond J. Mino ordered the pair confined in jail without bail pending further court proceedings.

Van Hoesen Resigns State Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The executive director of the State Commission of Correction, Morton G. Van Hoesen, has resigned, apparently under fire.

Commission Chairman Albert Berkowitz said Thursday night that Van Hoesen had circulated an interoffice memo earlier in the day, detailing his intention to resign effective May 23.

Van Hoesen himself offered only a brief "no comment."

Van Hoesen, who has held the post for the past three years, has been under increasing fire during the past three months from legislators and community groups charging the commission has not done its job of overseeing state prisons and jails, including all local facilities.

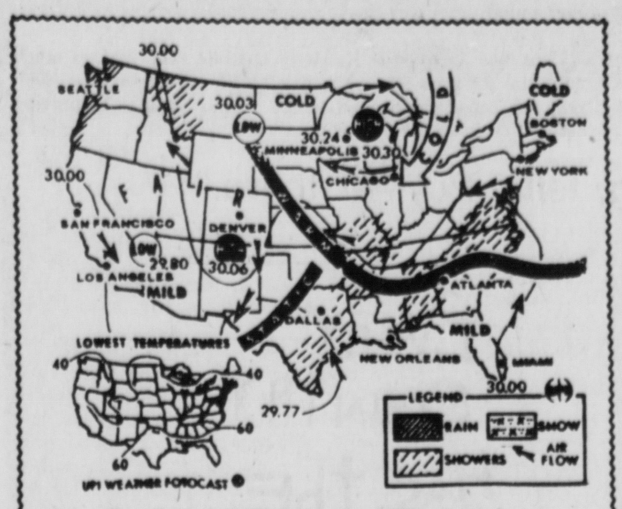

The most strident outcries came recently over problems in the Dutchess County jail, where two inmates committed suicide and a third was barely rescued.

A former commission investigator, R. Robert Byers, a onetime Albany narcotics officer and suburban police chief, testified before the Senate Committee on Prisons that the commission often failed to act on, or covered up, reports he and other investigators turned in on improper activities at local jails.

Van Hoesen, in an appearance before the same committee, strenuously denied Byers' allegations. He also said the commission was understaffed for the task assigned it by the legislature.

The Commission, a seven-member unsalaried watchdog agency, was just recently separated from the state Department of Corrections.

Van Hoesen has had 29 years' experience in corrections work, mostly with that department.

Carey Proposal... Tax Hike Needed

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Nearly half a billion dollars in increased taxes on businesses would be needed next year if Gov. Hugh L. Carey's proposed increase in unemployment benefits is approved, according to a spokesman for a business group.

In addition, a State Labor Department official told a Senate hearing Thursday, Carey's proposal could exhaust the state's Unemployment Insurance Fund unless higher taxes were approved.

Statewide unemployment of 10.2 percent, the highest since the 1930's, he said, has already put a serious strain on the fund.

John J. Roberts, executive vice president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce, criticized both Carey's unemployment plan and one proposed by Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson during a hearing by the Senate Labor Committee.

Labor committee head, Norman J. Levy, R-South Merrick, has co-sponsored the Anderson bill, which the pair say would not require higher taxes and "would not jeopardize the stability" of the fund.

If Carey acts on his pledge that new spending programs must be paid for by higher taxes, Roberts said, "then he must be prepared to enact, along with his proposed bill, increased unemployment taxes on employers at the rate of at least $270 million a year this year and over one-half billion dollars next year."

Anderson's proposal would "cost at the rate of $135 million a year this year," Roberts added.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

May 1775:

Having surreptitiously departed England March 22, Benjamin Franklin returns to Philadelphia after 18 years in Europe working for conciliation in behalf of the colonies. He is soured and exasperated by the wrongs and insults to himself and to his country. He believes, as he wrote on February 5, that Parliament has shown "rashness and precipitation in matters requiring the most weighty deliberation, refusing to hear, and entering hastily into violent measures; and yet this is the government by whose supreme authority we are to have our throats cut... while their conduct hardly entitles them to common respect." He also has become convinced that independence is all but inevitable. The following day, he is named a delegate to the Second Continental Congress.

Medical Crisis

The medical crisis looming for the Kingston area is a cause for concern for all of us. Area physicians, faced with the loss of malpractice insurance on June 30, have announced an emergency plan sharply curtailing medical services for this area, and even that contingent on the state legislature passing a "Good Samaritan" law exempting doctors from the effects of suits.

Dr. Edmund Reppert, spokesman for the Ulster County Medical Society, explained that the society has agreed to provide medical services only on an emergency basis, and only at the county's three hospitals. Patients would have no choice of the attending physician, but would be treated by the doctor on assignment. Obviously, the quality of medical care will suffer, a situation that orders on the intolerable.

A quick solution lies in the hands of Governor Carey, who can move on any of three fronts. The governor could use his vigorously push his own proposal, despite claims by some doctors that this would increase premiums by 100 percent, or Carey could sue powers to prod the legislature to quickly devise a program that would be acceptable to both the state's doctors and the special interests representing the trial lawyers, who want a piece of the malpractice pie, and the insurance companies who many times attempt to avoid what they are in business for, namely the protection of their customers. Lastly, Carey could back the state Medical Society's plan that would reportedly only result in a premium increase of 15 percent.

Regardless of how the governor moves, the point is that he's got to act quickly to get this potentially dangerous situation off dead center.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

The Difference in Jacqueline

WASHINGTON—Our columns about the private world of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis produced a Vesuvius of angry denials and denunciations.

Individual answers to all the letters are impossible, so we will attempt an omnibus reply. We will offer, too, a few details that were crowded out of the original series.

An enormous investment of national interest, respect, affection and prestige was once made in Jacqueline Kennedy. She was a factor in the imagery surrounding John F. Kennedy's rise to the presidency and in the glittering aura cast by his administration.

As First Lady, she occupied the position of a national exemplar. There is, therefore, a continuing interest in her that does not cease at a convenient moment, an interest i in the key events of her life, in how she conducts herself.

There is an historical interest, too, in what kind of person she was at the time when she was a symbol of America, the cynosure of all eyes. Historians are still probing and analyzing the behavior of Mary Todd Lincoln and Eleanor Roosevelt before, during and after their White House years. So it must contine to be with Jacqueline Kennedy.

For still other reasons she is a particular lightning rod for public attention. Her choice of lifestyle, which by ordinary standards is exotic, attracts the spotlight.

The Jacqueline Kennedy who in the years of Camelot and the days of Dallas won a place in the nation's heart and imagination left the White House with a prestige that could have been a tremendous force for good.

When fate bestows a staggering opportunity to serve mankind, it also inflicts a responsibility that supersedes private inclinations. Eleanor Roosevelt took up that burden; Coretta King has taken it up. Jacqueline Kennedy has shirked it, pursuing instead luxury, languor, gowns, jewels and the wheedling of unearned wealth.

Her reign as queen of the jet set has been chronicled largely by the gossip writers who report the bon mots, the pouts and the shims of the social butterflies. Our columns, on the contrary were not based at all upon gossip dropped at posh parties.

The late Aristotle Onassis himself piqued our interest by inviting us to his favorite Manhattan restaurant last December for a private talk. It turned out to be his last conversation with a newsman.

He had little to say about his famous wife except for a mild complaint about her extravagance and her horsy friends. But we learned afterwards that he had indicated to his closest associates that we could be trusted. This led some of them to confide in us after his death.

We were also shown private papers, letters and other documents. We spent three weeks pursuing every lead and checking out every detail. For Jackie's side of the story, we spoke to several of her friends, and we offered to go over every allegation with her personally.

We reported thereafter that the huge Onassis estate will be controlled by daughter Christina, not wife Jacqueline, and that the marriage had been preceded by a written contract providing a cash settlement on Jacqueline of at least $3 million in tax-free bonds.

She also received a spending allowance, which began at $30,000 a month but was cut to $20,000 by Onassis in protest over her spending habits. She had other perquisites such as charge privileges in the famous shopping emporiums of the world.

We reported further that Jacqueline systematically converted gowns, gifts and other indulgences of Onassis into cash by selling them off at fashionable New York City resale houses.

As signs accumulated that the largesse was ending, Jackie reacted by intensifying her efforts. During her husband's final illness, she went on a shopping spree at Bloomingdale's.

A close friend of the Onassises told us: "She thought it might be her last fling. She is so avaricious, so greedy." But her secretary, Nancy Tuckerman, claimed Jackie had to buy many items for her new home in New Jersey. "Life must go on," said Ms. Tuckerman.

Not long after the Onassis funeral, the indispensable Ms. Tuckerman was dispatched to the New York headquarters to inquire about the continuation of the allowance. Christina apparently is letting it continue.

If Jackie squandered her late husband's money, she was always tight with her own. She had to pay out of her own budget, for example, to repaint her Fifth Avenue apartment. Once, she called in a representative of the Union Square Painting Company and asked for estimates. When she found it would cost $3,000 for the paint work, she cancelled the project rather than spend the money.

She was lavish, however, with the money not only of her husband but of her friends. During a fabulous few days in Tehran as guest of Iran's top oilman, Dr. Rexa Fallah, Jacqueline spent most of her time in the shops buying up expensive jewelry, antiques, artcraft, sheepskin boots and jackets, silk ties, lamps and other loot.

We have evidence that she charged everything to her host. Then afterwards, she announced that she was leaving a $700 check to be distributed among the servants. But no check was ever found.

Thus has Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, who had so much potential for good, chosen instead a life of uselessness. Each year she consumes enough of the world's luzuries to provide necessities for hundreds of families.

Inside Report

Stalemate in Energy Situation

WASHINGTON—A partisan cat-and-mouse game played within the House Ways and Means Committee points to permanent stalemate on energy and no major action against a serious menace to this country.

What Ways and Means is doing in its languorous handling of energy tax legislation is drenched in politics. Dominant Democrats are maneuvering for Republican endorsement of a bill unlikely to clear the House itself. The embattled Republican minority, in turn resists such an embrace, preferring a wholly Democratic stamp on a bill condemned to oblivion and perhaps carrying political obloquy for its sponsors.

Thus, despite periodic bleats from the White House about an energy compromise in sight, there is little likelihood of legislation to force reduced oil consumption. Confronting a rambunctious Democratic majority recognizing no structured leadership, President Ford cannot even control his Republican minority. Beyond doubt, the energy stalemate documents the crisis in government here today.

Events last week underlined relationships between the three actors in the politics of energy—the President, congressional Democrats and congressional Republicans.

The philosophical differences are clear. Republicans want to reduce oil consumption through the price mechanism that is, by raising prices; Democrats want the reduction through some means of government control.

A compromise has been sought in weeks of negotiations by two sincere, industrious newcomers to their jobs; Federal Energy administrator Frank Zarb and Rep. Al Ullman, Ways and Means chairman. They agreed to combine an oil import quota (controls) with a gasoline tax (price mechanism), the relative emphass on each remaining a big, unanswered question.

Ullman had trouble selling this to liberal Democratic committee members who oppose the gasoline tax as regressive, but Zarb had even more trouble with committee Republicans. Rep. Barber Conable of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee and a senior Ways and Means member, had been instrumental in Mr. Ford's anti-gas tax statements during the 1974 campaign. Conable and other Republican Congressmen promised constituents last fall to oppose any gas tax and have infomed Zarb they are not about to renege.

That led to last week's decision, forced on the President simultaneously with the fall of Saigon. Should he impose by executive order the second dollar of his proposed $3-a-barrel oil import tax—popularly called "playing hardball"? Or should he wait another month to see whether the Ullman-Zarb negotiations succeeded?

Advice from Conable and other committee Republicans was firm: play hardball. The committee's Democrats, they told the President, were only trying to entangle him and the Republicans in a bill that could never pass the House. To protect his own eroded authority, they urged, stand firm. Some White House advisers agreed.

But Zarb urged Mr. Ford to give the Democrats one more month. Even more persuasive perhaps was Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, a conservative Democrat with close ties to the White House. He had trouble enough with Congress, Waggoner told the President; Invoking executive power would only exacerbate his problems.

But the President's granting another month's grace has brought the leisurely Ways and Means pace to paralysis. The May 1 decision started a cat-and-mouse game, with Democrats seeking collaboration among the 12 Republicans on the 37-member committee, and Republicans resisting the snare.

An example: Rep. Herman Schneebeli of Pennsylvania, the committee's senior Republican, suggested on May 2 an improvement in one Democratic proposal he opposed in principle. By May 5, his suggestion had been transmogrified into the "Schneebeli Amendment." Averting the trap, he disavowed authorship.

So, if the committee votes a bill including a gasoline tax, it probably will be a straight Democratic measure without Republican votes. Either way, there is little hope and gas tax could survive the House floor, suggesting all this is largely political posturing.

Sooner or later, then, Mr. Ford probably will impose the second dollar (but not the third dollar) of his import tax. What's more, it is doubtful the Democrats can muster the two-thirds vote to block that $2 tariff. But the tariff was originally intended to prod Congress into passing the rest of the Ford anergy program; a $2 domestic oil tax, price decontrol, windfall profits tax, natural gas deregulation. Standing alone, a $2 tariff would be a hollow victory, confirming the President's political manhood but hardly solving the energy problem.

Nobody seems able to avert this dreary ending. With good intent on both sides, an appointed Republican President and a leaderless Democratic Congress have produced only stalemate on a problem both believe threatens the nation.

The Wonders of the Brain

Your brain is gray and pink. It weighs about three pounds and looks like a shelled walnut. It fits tightly inside your skull and uses 10 billion nerve cells, more message centers than the most complex computer. The servant of the brain is the body.

It can order you to feel, smell, taste, hear, speak, see — its autonomic center can even order you to scratch an itch in your sleep, or to cough when your throat tickles.

Although it weighs less than a melon, it has greater power than the biggest planet, the brightest star. It can take an assortment of facts and reach a conclusion. It can be atavistic and instinctive, fearing fire and falling from great heights.

It reserves part of itself as a great storehouse for memories and experiences. Exactly 100 years ago, Wilhelm Wundt, a physiologist and psychologist at the University of Leipzig, discovered that the brain had a phychological aspect which conditioned it to fear, to love, to hate, to be aggressive or passive.

Without the brain, the body is useless. The mind uses a thick stem leading down through the back of the skull to the spinal cord. There, through bundles of nerves, it can order a solitary finger to be moistened on a tongue which it orders to extend itself, and a man can hold it aloft to detect the direction of the wind.

When the body sleeps, the brain remains awake, dreaming confused thoughts and images. Metabolism slows, the heart, lungs and other organs move at reduced speed as they regenerate themselves.

The most important aspect of the brain is consciousness. Apply a general anesthetic and it lapses into unconsciousness, unable to detect or to order the body to feel pain or enjoy. Without consciousness, the human being does not know that there is a universe, or even himself. He knows not that he does not know. The nerve cells from brain to spine are complex and miltitudinous. The wish for example, to scratch one's nose may run down several bundles of one-way nerves at speeds up to 200 miles per hour. The brain must be aware of the nose itch and order shoulder, arm and fingers to move in the right direcion, while, at the same time, another part of the mind will be listening intelligently to a phone call, or watching television.

Sometimes the brain will capture the man, magnifying his problems (especially in the late hours) and autocratically demand that he dwell upon them. The difference between the mind of man and the brain of the animal is that the first has initiative, the second works by instinct.

Conversely, any animal—except man—can fend for itself and survive at the age of five. Man cannot. He will weep and drench himself with selfpity but a three-month old kitten will find food and water.

To remain conscious, the human brain requires 25 percent of all the blood's oxygen and a large amount of sugar. Cutting off the supply of either one reduces the human to unconsciousness. Too much oxygen, or too much sugar, will have the same effect. An interruption of nourishment for four short minutes induces irreversible brain damage or death.

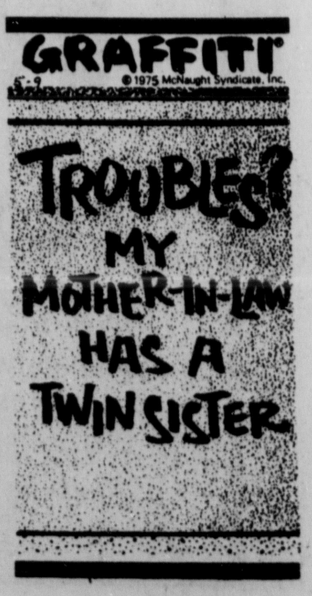

It is fed by four main arteries, which have an intricate system of crossfeeding, so that if any two are blocked, the remaining two will assume the full burden of unremitting nourishment. This wonder of all wonders is encased tightly by a see-through envelope called dura mater ("hard mother").

The mind inside controls 31 pairs of great spinal nerves which take orders to smaller nerves leading laterally from the spine to tiny sensory nerves at the tips of toes, top of scalp, fingertips. Nerves, sensory, motor or autonomous, are all one-way circuits.

The sensories feel; the motor causes movement; the autonomous control breathing, heart rate and circulation while the person sleeps. In an emergency, or fear, the autonomic system will order a faster heartbeat, a constriction of involuntary muscles and demand an increase in glandular output, including the adrenals.

The brain has an infinite capacity to learn, to exercise judgment. It has three means of absorbing knowledge: by rote (teaching); by experience; by reading. Of the three, reading surpasses all other means of comprehension, understanding and sympathetic understanding.

Your three-pound brain is its own universe. Without it, there is nothing but darkness . . .

California MD Strike Sentiment Growing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Anesthetists in two more big California cities have agreed to join their counterparts here in a strike protesting escalated malpractice insurance rates.

Sacramento's 60 anesthesiologists and San Jose's 70 said they would leave the surgical theaters of their hospitals. There was growing strike sentiment in Los Angeles and San Diego.

Late Thursday, officials here said about 2,000 more hospital employes would be furloughed or laid off Monday unless there was an immediate settlement in the dispute. So far 3,000 workers have been let go in the crisis, which began May 1.

Dale Morgan, president of the San Francisco Hospital Conference, said the city's 20 affected hospitals were losing $200,000 a day because of the work stoppage. He called upon the legislature to meet in special session at once to come up with a solution.

The dispute started when the anesthetists let their insurance lapse. They were angered because the Argonaut Insurance Co., of Menlo Park, Calif., discontinued its group rates and boosted individual rates by some 300 percent.

The striking anesthetists did agree to provide doctors in life-and-death cases, but the patient population at hospitals dropped drastically because surgical services were curtailed.

The crisis was intensified when Travelers Corp., a major carrier of such insurance, said it might raise its premiums for the specialists from 400 to 600 percent on Nov. 1.

Dr. Seymour Wallace of San Jose, president of the California Society of Anesthesiologists, said the mood of his associates was "utter anger and frustration" because of Travelers' announcement. He added this "could not have come at a worse time."

Hundreds of doctors lobbied in the state capitol at Sacramento this week for remedial legislation, but they were told that the legislature could not bring immediate relief.

In San Francisco, the employes at Presbyterian Hospital announced that they would donate $20,000 from their own pockets to help the anesthetists pay their insurance so there would be no curtailment of services. There was no response from the MDs.

Tornadoes Rip Through Louisiana

By UPI

Tornadoes skipped across Louisiana Thursday, accompanying a vigorous storm that assailed the Gulf Coast states with powerful winds and torrential rains, killing two persons.

A Walker, La., farmer was killed when a tree toppled on him as he walked through his backyard during a storm to check on his chickens. Another Walker man was killed when his car apparently was blown off a road by high winds and slammed into a tree.

Authorities said a tornado or high winds damaged about 60 percent of the homes in the Audubon Terrace subdivision of Baton Rouge, La.

"It sounded like a freight train coming through the house and we felt the whole house shudder," a resident of Audubon Terrace said. "Then the trees started hitting us, so we all crawled underneath the bed and stayed there until the rains subsided."

Savage winds smashed mobile homes and uprooted trees. Falling trees ripped down power lines, leaving most of the Baton Rouge without electricity.

Golf-ball size hail pounded sections of Baton Rouge.

More than three inches of rain drenched Mississippi and Louisiana.

Baton Rouge Mayor W.W. Dumas warned that more rain would result in flooding and severe property damage.

Thunderstorms spawned a few tornadoes in portions of Texas and heavy rains touched off some flooding in the Lone Star state, but there were no reports of injuries.

High winds peeled the top off a mobile home in Floresville, Tex. Another trailer home was damaged by winds at Falls City, Tex., and the front of a store in Karnes City, Tex., was damaged by rain.

Rain fell at two inches an hour in south central Texas and baseball-size hail pounded Dewees, 25 south of San Antonio.

The threat of flooding eased Thursday at Minot, N.D., as rains diminished on the northern Plains. Some 2,000 persons who had been told to move to higher ground Wednesday night began returning to their homes near the swollen Souris River.

Hiss Seeking To Practice Law

BOSTON (UPI) — Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury in a senational spy case a quarter century ago, now sells stationery in New York. He is asking a state court for the right to practice law again.

Hiss, 71, still maintains his innocence in the perjury conviction that brought national attention to then-Congressman Richard Nixon.

The full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court planned to convene later today to hear the Hiss appeal.

A prior appeal six months ago was referred to the State Board of Bar Overseers, which voted unanimously to deny the motion.

Hiss was disbarred in 1952 after a perjury conviction stemming from his denial that he gave magazine editor Whittaker Chambers secret government documents while Hiss worked in the State Department.

Hiss has not been pardoned and there has been no reversal of his 1950 conviction.

The overseers refused reinstatement although they said Hiss was of good moral character and was not likely to commit any serious crimes if readmitted to the bar.

As a congressman, Nixon was involved closely with the prosecution of Hiss before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Working on a tip, Nixon investigators turned up secret papers hidden in a pumpkin on Chambers' farm.

Following discovery of the "Pumpkin papers," a grand jury handed down indictments charging Hiss with two counts of perjury for denying he turned over government documents to an unauthorized persons, referring to Chambers.

The first trial ended in a deadlock. The second lasted 40 days, and found Hiss guilty on both counts. The verdict was upheld by the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals.

Hiss was a member of the State Department, had attended the Yalta Conference and helped organize the conferences at Dumbarton Oaks, San Francisco and Yalta.

He was also president of the reputable Carnegie Endowment for World Peace.

Victory Song From 'The Quartet' . . .

KINGSTON — The "quartet" was definitely not singing the blues Wednesday after victory at the polls Tuesday night.

Capt. Richard Skala, speaking for the four successful Kingston board of education members including himself, Ronald Meyers, Josephine McKean, and John Devine, expressed thanks to the public and promised to "reverse injustices" and "return your school board back to the people."

"For two weeks now we have told you our story, stated our positions, and we invited you to join us in a protest of what we felt was an indignity on your rights," he said.

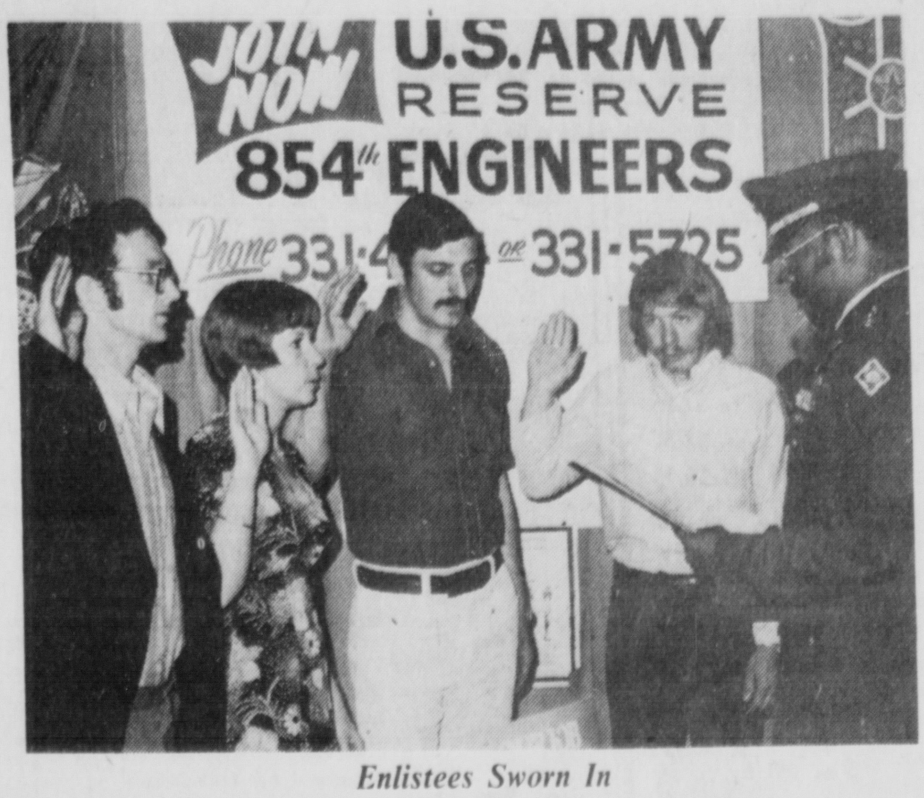

And a cautionary word, "Also we trust that during the interim period, prior to taking office, thepresent board clearly hears the mandate of the public and respects their wishes. We would not want to see any last minute resolutions acted upon that would be contrary to the public's best interest, as expressed in their clearcut vote Tuesday."

Joining together on the issues, the four "were not chosen by a select club, either in public or in private, to become candidates for school board vacancies," said Skala. "We didn't represent the the establishment."

He expressed amazement at the "overwhelming, spontaneous support" received in the record voter turnout. "Unlike others, who felt it necessary to range far and wide seeking advocates and supporters, we simply repeated our basic message and the supporters came to us, in person and over the telephone."

Skala state pleasure at the endorsement of WHITA, claiming the election was a "classic example of the results which can be achieved through a taxpayer's organization such as WHITA," and he encouraged a growing public membershop in such organizations.

The "quartet" will not disappear, he noted.

Enlistees Sworn In

Anthony Ferrara (L), Mrs. and Mr. Richard Fried, and William Oneto are sworn in by Capt. F. Robinson.

Reserve Program

KINGSTON — Company A of the 854th Engineer Battalion, U. S. Army Reserve, Kingston, has enlisted its first husband and wife team, Lorraine and Richard Fried of Ulster Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Fried were sworn in last week along with several enlistees at the Lions Exposition.

The Army Reserve enlistment program is for young men and women between 17 and 35 years of age. Under the program male and female enlistees, without civilian acquired skills, must spend at least four months on active duty at which time they complete basic training and advanced individual training in a career area.

The specialized training to be received is determined before the individual enlists and is influenced by position vacancies in the Army Reserve unit.

Because of the technical nature of most engineer career areas, high school graduation is a minimum requirement for training in most specialties.

When the reservist returns from basic training he or she is required to train with other seservists during 48 four-hour assemblies each year. With consolidation of "assemblies" the training requirement is generally one weekend a month and two weeks each summer of annual training. Reservists are paid for participation in annual training and the unit assemblies.

Further information can be obtained by contacting the U. S. Army Reserve at 144 Flatbush Avenue.

Wittenberg's William Spanhake Recounts Titanic Tragedy

LIFE TODAY

Facial Expressions
that
Speak a Thousand Words

By Tobie Geertsema

The room in the Ulster County Infirmary is small and immaculately clean. Dominated by two neatly made hospital beds and several chairs, its big glass windows overlook an asphalt parking lot and a newly mowed lawn dipping downward from Golden Hill.

But when the man who now lives here begins to speak, the small Infirmary room is replaced in th mind of the visitor by a huge luxury liner on its maiden crossing from Southampton, England, New York . . . and the sunny spring day is transformed into a wild dark night of biting cold in an ice-jammed ocean. Nurses' voices in the hallway outside segue into the sound of ice grating and groaning against the bottoms of lifeboats. The parking lot and lawn are seemingly repossessed by hands reaching out to other hands barely visible in the inky black and frigid water; and the big glass windows melt into the lights of the liner, disappearing row below the water — until the final row is suctioned down-ward into a scream of death.

William F. Spanhake Sr., still alert and springhtly at 94, has often relieved that night the Titanic sank. His life today at the County Infirmary is a quiet one, much of it spent sitting with his 79-year-old wife, Minerva, in the solariu. But for eight dark hours in the black of night on April 15, 1912, Bill Spanhake helped guide a shivering boatload of weeping women and frightened children across an ice field to a rescue ship, after the Titanic — supposedly unsinkable — struck an iceberg and took more than 1,500 people to their deaths in the Atlantic depths.

That was 63 years ago when Bill Spanhake was a young reserve engineer on the Titanic. Born in Pennsylvania Dutch country, he had long since left home"to see the world . . . to learn something." And even before the emerged as one of the 711 survivors of that fateful crossing, the education he had acquired in his world travels meant more to him than any college euducation.

He had read the works of all the great philosophers; mastered a score of musical instruments; backpacked through Egypt; lived with the Hottentots in Africa; learned the art of wood carving in Bavaria. And in the years after the Titanic, he acquired a dozen trades (among them: mason, butcher, resort hotel waiter, farmer, carpenter); trod the boards as an actor in summer stock; became an artist of recognized painting talent; earned a reputation as one of the finest violin makers and most sought-after carvers of wooden merry-go-round horses.

But in all that rich and fulfilling life, one event has dominated all else. Working the night engine room shift on the Titanic, Spanhake was eating his evening meal an hour or so before midnight when the iceberg tore into the Titanic, leaving her — in Spanhake's words — "too badly injured with a 75 foot cut not to sink!"

Attempting to return to th engine room, he was forbidden to do so; told to help lower the lifeboats from the first deck down to the promenade deck. "Nobody came out of the engine room alive," said Spanhake, who would have been there himself if he had not been on meal break. "The bunker on No. 8 was on fire, and fire was raging through the coal bunkers and boilers in the engine room, but no one was allowed to go down to put them out. We had to wait for the captian to give the orders, and mine were to help lower and man the lifeboats."

It was an almost impossible task. Only women and children were being loaded into the lifeboats — and, by the hundreds, they refused to go. Brainwashed by the publicity that the Titanic was unsinkable, they felt they'd be safer remaining aboard than risking the waves and ice field.

Spanhake, aided by two other crewmen and a passenger who was a colonel in the U.S. Army, managed to lower and fill several lifeboats — one with as few as 50 people, one with 70.

"We couldn't get most of the women to go in the boats," he said, "but there were many men who begged to go and hung on the sides, even though only women and children were allowed."

The frantic struggle to load the lifeboats was one of haste (the Titanic sank in an hour), but the worst was yet to come from Spanhake. His back badly injured by a swinging lifeboat, and almost unconscious, he nevertheless helped man one of the last boats to leave. The scene as the bot rowed away has never faded from his memory; was one he dreamed about every night for years; kept him from sleeping at all for months.

"People were drowning around us by the dozens," he said. "We tried to grab their arms, but it wa impossible — they were ice cold and slipped from our grasp. A nurse and two little French boys were in my boat. When one of the boys fell overboard, she tried to help him — and she drowned, oo. The other boy was the only child in my boat and, since I knew some French, I looked after him."

Bill Spanhake was not impressed with the Hollywood version of the Titanic's sinking he saw on television. "It was the biggest fake I've ever seen," he said. 'Nobody pulled anyone out of the water. It just wasn't humanly possible. And most of the male passengers were not as brave and courageous as they were in the movie. They were rich men who would have bought their way into the lifeboats if they could. Money they could. Money has never meant a thing to me . . . and it didn't mean anything to the rich that night."

Shivering in exhaustion, the crowded Titanic lifeboats manuevered their way through the ice-choked water in the killing cold for eight hours before the rescue ship Carpathia picked them up. On the almost four day trip back to New York, Spanhake — who had been eating in the crew's mess room when the Titanic struck an iceberg — received royal treatment in the Carpathia's luxury dining room.

The agony of the Titanic and the nightmare of the rescue ended Spanhake's seafaring career. He never sailed again. "I wanted to start a new life," he said. "I had had enough of the shipping business. I was back home in America to stay and I never went to Europe again."

He returned to Philadelphia, close to his Pennsylvania Dutch origins; spent a number of years as a head waiter in major resort hotels in New Jersey and on Long Island; still recalls with gourmet pleasure the duck served in one — and the pineapple cheese cake for which Brooklyn's Hotel St. George was famous when he worked there.

His zest for life eventually led him into a dozen other trades and into most of the arts. Married for 57 years to the former Minerva Lasher, born in th Lake Hill section of Woodstock and whose family property is now covered by Cooper's Lake, he raised his children in the art colony; became one of the town's most popular residents.

On his Wittenberg farm, he raised cattle and goats. Throughout the town is the evidence of his mastery of masonry and carpentry. As a fiddler, he has been a perennial Woodstock entertainer; as an actor, a memorable performer; as a consummate wood carver, he has had few — if any — peers. Some of his carvings were owned by the late Walt Disney, and his life-sized merry-go-round horses ("He gave most of them away," says his wife — with more pride than chastisement) are highly coveted by those who own them.

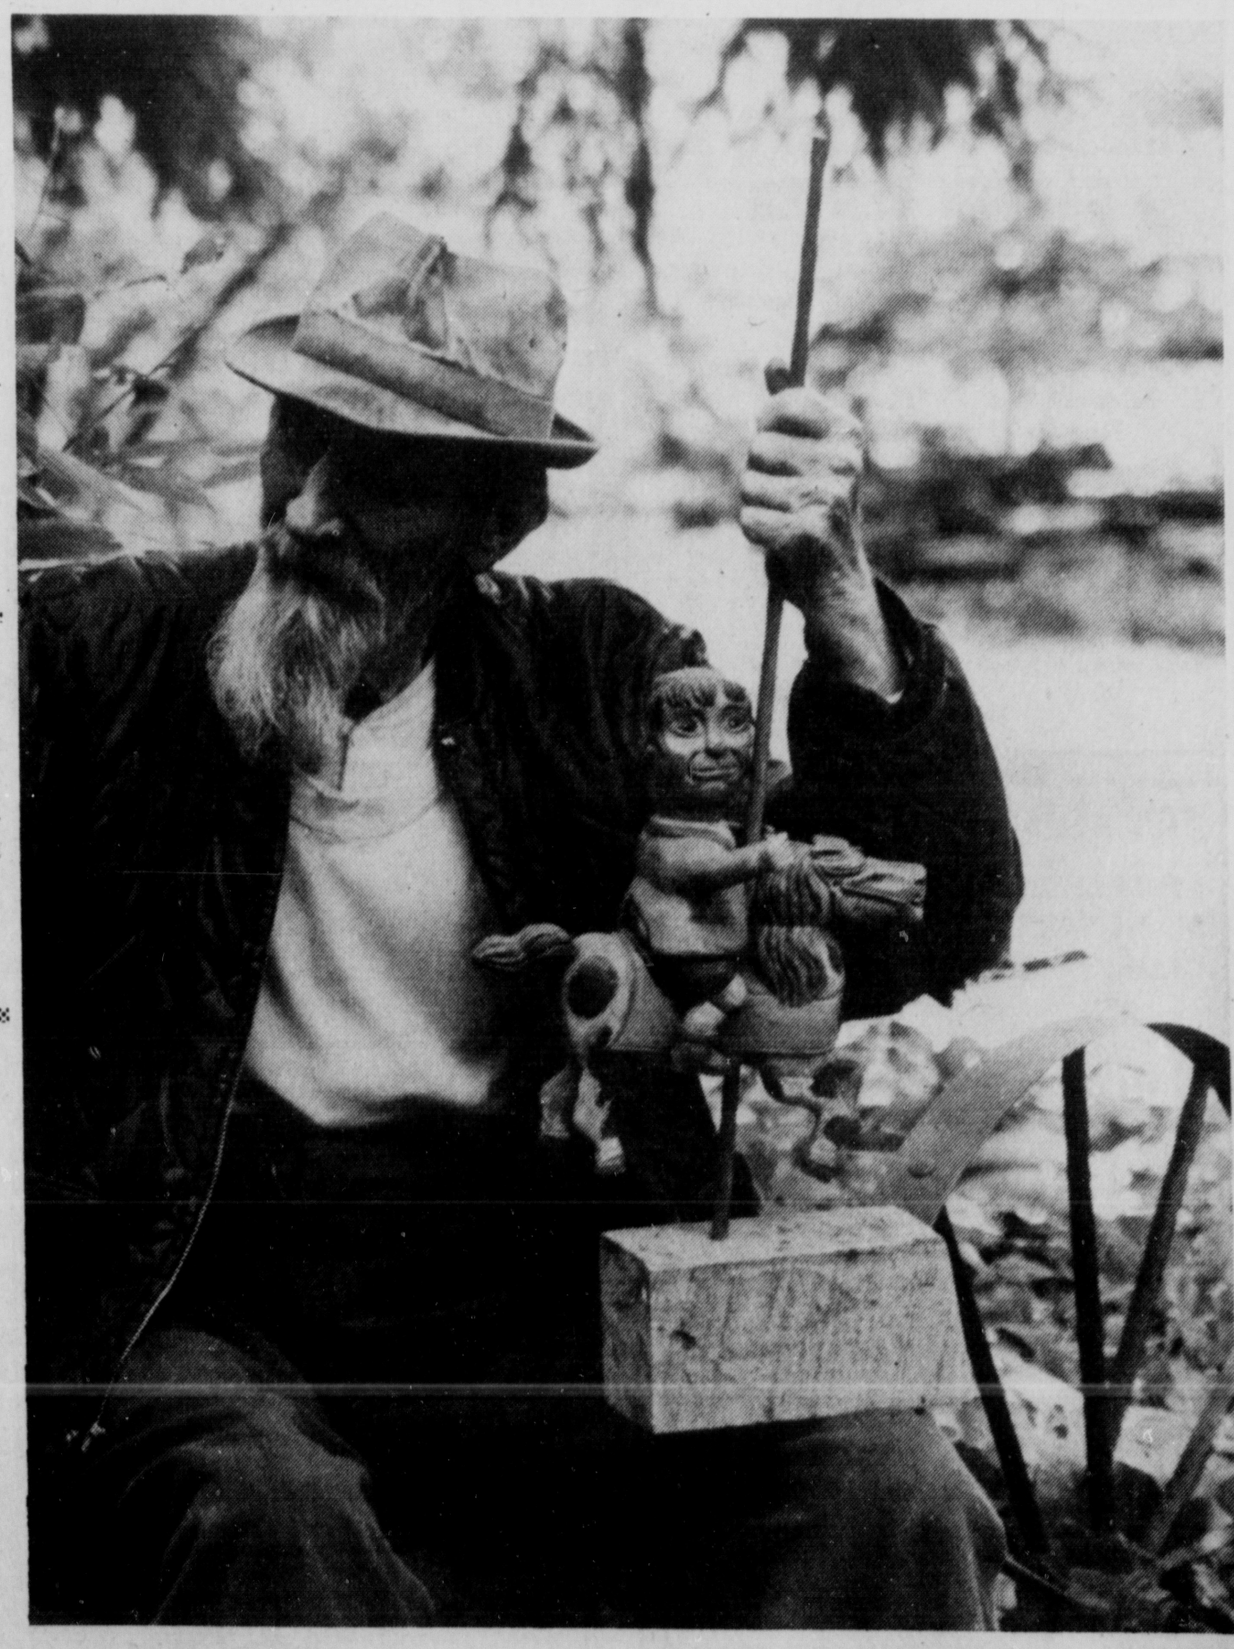

That Bill Spanhake has lived life to the hilt is evident. He and his wife were totally self-reliant and fiercely independent in their own home until short weeks ago. They settled into the Infirmary only after he suffered a stroke and she became troubled with recurrent dizziness.

"We're tired now," he laughs, "and we just want to rest." And why not? There was no rest in the Atlantic on that grim night in 1912 (he still feels the Titanic's Captain Smith and his engineers were "entirely to blame" for the tragedy). And there was little rest in the many years that followed.

But even at 94 and even in the Infirmary, Bill Spanhake's incredible individuality is apparent. Nurses there say he was the life of the party on one recent occasion, singing and dancing with Papa Bear when his band performed for pateints. His memory is as clear and detailed now as when he watched the Titanic sink, and he can still talk freely and emotionally . . . not only about that long ago tragedy of which he is one of the last survivors — but about today.

"I left a workshop at home worth a fortune when I came here," he said "filled with unfinished violins." And, so, chances are, if his workbench could be moved into his room at the Infirmary — while wife Minerva watches the animal shows she enjoys on TV, Bill Spanhake would be found whittling away.

Lacking his workbench, however, he seeks out the solarium ("I've been in dining rooms all my life," he said) — remembering all the dining rooms of his head waiter days . . . and those of the Titanic and Carpathia in particular.

Thoughts of the sea are not all pleasant for ill-fated liner's engineer . . . now a patient at County Infirmary. (Van Cort photos)

Famed Orchestra in Concert Series

The National Arts Centre Orchestra of Canada will be one of the featured attractions presented by the Kingston Community Concert Association during the 1975-76 series.

The rise of the orchestra has been meteoric. Within a span of four years it has made its name not only in Canada but in the United States as well as Europe and the Soviet Union. Both at home and abroad, it has been hailed as a first-rate ensemble. Its most recent tour throughout Great Britain, France and Italy was a triumphant success.

Founded in 1969, the orchestra gave its first concert under the direction of its regular conductor, Mario Bernardi.

In Ottawa the orchestra now gives four subscription series, including one for families and one for high school and university students. It also plays for ballet and opera companies presented by the Centre which are the main offerings of Festival Canada each July.

In 1970 the orchestra signed a three-year contract with RCA recording company, and the following year, the first of a series of three records came out on the prestigious "Red Seal" label.

As an integral part of the National Arts Centre, the orchestra has a national role to fulfill. The orchestra performs for visiting statesmen or at the governments's request, for national events. It also tours the nation coast to coast. It has given concerts in Toronto and Montreal as well and has participated in festivals throughout Quebec.

In December the orchestra will make its Carnegie Hall Debut. The Community Concert Association is honored to present this outstanding orchestra while it is on tour of the United States, for the orchestra will only be appearing in 11 American cities after which it will make an appearance in Mexico.

Memberships for the coming season are available from any worker of the volunteer staff, by calling Mrs. George Wert, campanging chairman, Mrs. John McCullough, membership secretary, or by calling directly to the Community Concert Desk at Governor Clinton Hotel today until 5 p.m. and until noon on Saturday.

He Won't Show His Hand

By Abigail Van Buren
1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I met a very nice young man at a church fellowship affair for singles. Clyde had good manners and dressed well, and although he was on the quiet side, I managed to make enough conversation with him so that he asked to see me again.

We saw each other a few times and seemed to hit it off well. But there is one problem: Clyde doesn't like to shake hands with anybody. In fact, he even asked me not to take him any place where he would have to shake hands.

I noticed that when Clyde was introduced to another man, he kept his hands in his pockets and said, "Pleased to meet you." The other fellow looked a little embarrassed because he was all set to shake hands with Clyde.

Does Clyde have a problem? Or am I making too much out of this?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Clyde has a problem. It's probably an obsession with "germs"—imagined or real. In a society where handshaking is customary, refusing to shake hands could be considered unfriendly or even insulting.

Clyde would be well advised to talk to a professional about it. And I hope he does.

DEAR ABBY: A while back, a lady wrote and told you that she didn't like the way her daughter-in-law kept house. You told the mother not to say anything since it was not her house.

Does this hold true for the marriage problems of one's married children? I say, the parents should stay out of their kids' domestic squabbles even though they want to help.

Am I right or wrong?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You're right! The last person to mediate a family fight is a member of that family.

DEAR ABBY: As a police officer, may I say something to the man who objected to a women wearing pants suits?

Not one victim of the rape cases I handled was wearing a tailored pants suit. One was wearing a slinky pajama sort of thing; the others were wearing either skirts or shorts.

A COP

DEAR ABBY: I have a question to ask that has been bothering both my husband and me for a long time.

We have two little girls. Our third daughter was stillborn. When people ask us how many children we have, what is the best answer?

WISCONSIN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The best answer is your own: "We have two little girls. Our third daughter was stillborn."

DEAR ABBY: After 25 years of marriage and a nice family, I found out my husband was unfaithful to me. Because of a death in my family in another state, we were apart for two months. During that time my husband said he got lonely and found this divorcee who was also lonely, so they became good friends and went out to dinner together several nights a week, to the movies, Sunday afternoon drives, etc.

He claims there was nothing more than a few kisses exchanged between them. He says he loves me and needs me but wants to continue being friends with this other woman. He says there is no reason why the three of us can't be friends and go out to dinner occasionally. He wants to be able to stop at her house to "just talk" when he feels like it.

I finally met her, and she told me she had no intentions of interfering with my marriage. She just wants to be friends. Abby, I love my husband, but I can't go along with this threesome.

We are financially comfortable, our children are married, and now we could enjoy life, but I don't want to share my husband with another woman. The sound of her name just tears me up. Help me before I crack up. I suggested counseling and he said it isn't necessary.

CRACKING UP

DEAR CRACKING: Hang in there, you're on the right track. There is no way you can be "friends" with this woman. Counseling IS necessary. If he won't go, go without him and learn how to handle this born-- again Casanova.

Savago to Appeal Health Move

KINGSTON

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago will appeal directly to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare concerning Gov. Hugh Carey's announced assignment of Ulster County to a regional health services planning area centered around a major medical facility which is only in the planning stages in Westchester County.

Last month the legislature voted unanimously to request Carey to assiggn Ulster County to an area that presently has a major medical facility that conforms to this area's needs (Albany).

Carey chose to ignore the request, however, and, according to Savago, failed to explain his actions or reasons and did not provide for a procedure for appeal or further discussion.

Assignment of Ulster to the Albany area has been recommended by the Ulster County Medical Society and Health Commissioner Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto.

Carey's recommendation, which was announced May 2, was sent to HEW for review pending a final decision by that agency by August of this year.

While the Ulster County Legislature was unanimous in making the initial recommendation to Carey, the vote to appeal the governor's decision Thursday night tailed to gain the support of the Democratic members of the county board. The proposal to authorize Savago, a Dist. 8 Republican, to appeal was passed by a vote of 20 to 13 with all GOP members in favor.

Asked why the Democrats had changed their mind, Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, (D-City) said he was bowing to the wisdom of the Governor while Louis Klein (D-Dist. 6) indicated that his party has since learned what counties were included in both the Westchester and Albany areas and he felt Ulster was more compatible with the area to the south.

The legislature, meeting in regular session at the County Office Building, also ratified two county employe contracts. One was with the Ulster County Sheriff's Employes Association which reportedly provided for a 14 percent increase in salary the first year and eight percent the second year. The second contract was with the Organization of Professional Administrative Personnel of Ulster County Community College, a 32-month contract, it reportedly called for an eight percent increase the first year and a cost of living increase the remaining 24 months.

The Democratic legislators' call for an extradition study in the case of the abduction of Lake Katrine youngster Joanna Pierce by her natural father, Franklin Pierce was withdrawn.

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt addessed the afternoon session of the legislature explaining the extensive action his office has taken in attempts to get the FBI to locate Pierce so he can be extradited. The DA said he has written Pierce a letter sending it through his sister in Florida stating that if he voluntarily returns to Ulster County Vogt would move to dismiss felony charges against him.

In other action, a resolution calling for the amending of legislative rules to include an allowance for a 30-minute discussion period for citizens wishing to address the legislature, was defeated 20 to 13, a party line vote.

Neighbors Aid in Capture

KINGSTON

Alert neighbors aided police Thursday by calling in reports of suspicious activities which resulted in the arrests of four youthful burglars who were in the process of separate break-ins in Rolling Meadows and Kingston.

One youth and one juvenile were taken into custody in each of the unrelated burglaries.

State police BCI personnel, assisted by two Kingston police officers working with them in a unrelated investigation, staked out a Rolling Meadows home Thursday after receiving a tip from a neighbor that two youngsters had been seen apparently casing the residence.

At about 12:15 p. m. a 16-year-old and a 14-year-old, neither of whom were identified, were arrested in the Robert Sudlow residence on Fairview Drive after they allegedly smashed a window to gain entrance to the house.

In Kingston, 16-year-old Mark S. Gorsline of 44 Guyton Street and an unidentified juvenile were arrested by city police after they allegedly broke into the Joseph Bruno residence, 46 Summer Street. Police went to the house at about 1:40 p. m. after receiving a report of two youths attempting to get into the house. Once there, police said they found the youth and juvenile in a bedroom, one hiding in a closet and the other hiding under a bed.

Police chareged Gorsline with two counts of third degree burglary after determining that he and the juvenile had also allegedly broken into the same home on Wednesday and taken some $28.

Death Is Ruled Accidental

Probe Blaze

MALDEN

Fire which destroyed an unoccupied two-story house on Sparling Road in Malden early today is under investigation by Saugerties Town Police, assisted by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department and State Police.

The house, owned by Henry Marklinger of Hempstead, L. I., was fully involved in flames when firemen arrived at the scene. It took about an hour for Malden-West Camp and Saxton fire fighters to bring the rampaging blaze under control, and firemen were at the acene for more than three hours.

Avery Brundage, Ex-IOC Head Dies at 87

BONN (UPI) — Avery Brundage, a towering figure in the world of Olympic sports for more than two decades, died of a heart failure at the age of 87 in a Garmisch-Partenkirchen hospital Thursday night.

His doctors said Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee for 20 years until 1972, entered the hospital two weeks ago for a respiratory infection. He died at 9:40 p.m. Wednesday following a heart failure.

"His death is an enormous loss for everyone. He was a man whose stature and personality went far beyond the world of sports" Willy Daume, president of the West German Olympic Committee said.

Brundage, an engineer by profession, spent his life fighting to free amateur sports from politics and professionalism and earned as many epithets as awards for the effort. He left his home in Chicago March 9 to join his 39-year-old wife, Princess Mariann von Reuss, in their summer home in the Alpine retreat in Southern Germany.

Brundage resigned as president of the IOC in 1972 and retired from the limelight, spending most of his free time in his Bavarian vacation home.

In his 20 years as head of the IOC, Brundage was often the focus of controversy.

"At one time or another, I've been called a capitalist, a Communist, a Socialist, a Fascist and a lot of other things that are unprintable," Brundage once said. "Kinder people have called me the last living amateur and I'm proud of that. The defense of an idea is more important than popularity."

The determination of the selfmade Chicago millionaire to defend the purity of amateur athletics involved him in controversy as early as 1920, when he had the American track and field championships moved from New Orleans because the organizers refused to let blacks compete.

Brundage, as chairman of the U.S. Olympic Committee, insisted that the American team go to the 1936 games in Nazi Germany and persuaded Adolf Hitler to add a Jewish woman fencer to his all-Aryan team. The same year, he announced the decision to expel Eleanor Holm from the U.S. team for drinking champagne on the ship to Europe, a decision so unpopular it helped her become a movie star.

By the time of the Munich Olympics of 1972, Brundage, at one time or another, had earned the wrath of the Russians and East Europeans for giving them only nine seats on the 70-member committee, had been accused by the U.S. State Department of buckling to "Communist pressure" for throwing the Nationalist Chinese out of the Olympics in 1959 and not letting them back in until they were willing to call themselves "Taiwan", had made sporting equipment manufactuers remove trademarks from Olympic equipment and had fought unsuccessfully to get South Africa's 1968 team and Rhodesia's 1972 team admitted to the Olympics after fighting successfully to get blacks included on those two teams.

When the massacre of Israeli athletes at Munich provided the ultimate insult to the Olympic ideal, the octogenarian IOC president, his voice shaking with emotion, proclaimed:

"We cannot allow a handful of terrorists to destroy this nucleus of international cooperation and good will that we have in the Olympic movement. The games must go on."

And they did.

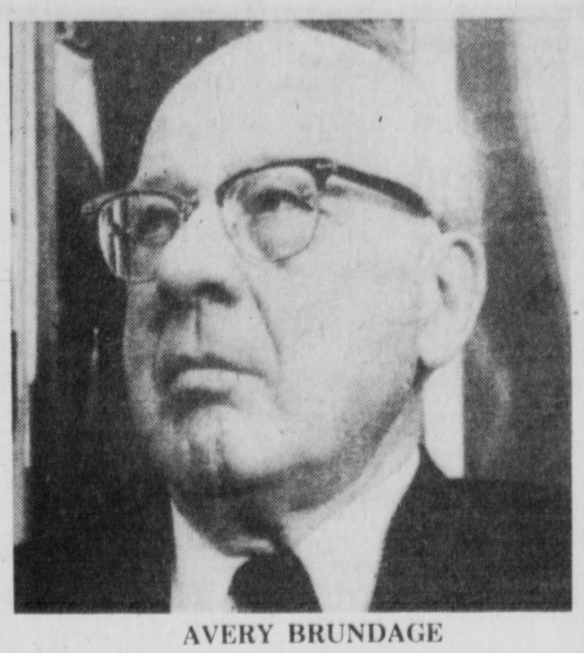

Born Sept. 28, 1887, in Detroit and abandoned by his father at an early age, Brundage showed the same sort of determination to lift himself from poverty to great wealth. Raised by an aunt and uncle in Chicago, he sold newspapers as a boy and later worked his way through the University of Illinois.

Brundage was never too busy for sports. After college, he joined the Chicago Athletic Association and began to develop even more as an all round athlete. Heel-and-toe walking, which Brundage once described as "the closest a man can come to the pangs of childbirth," was his favorite sport.

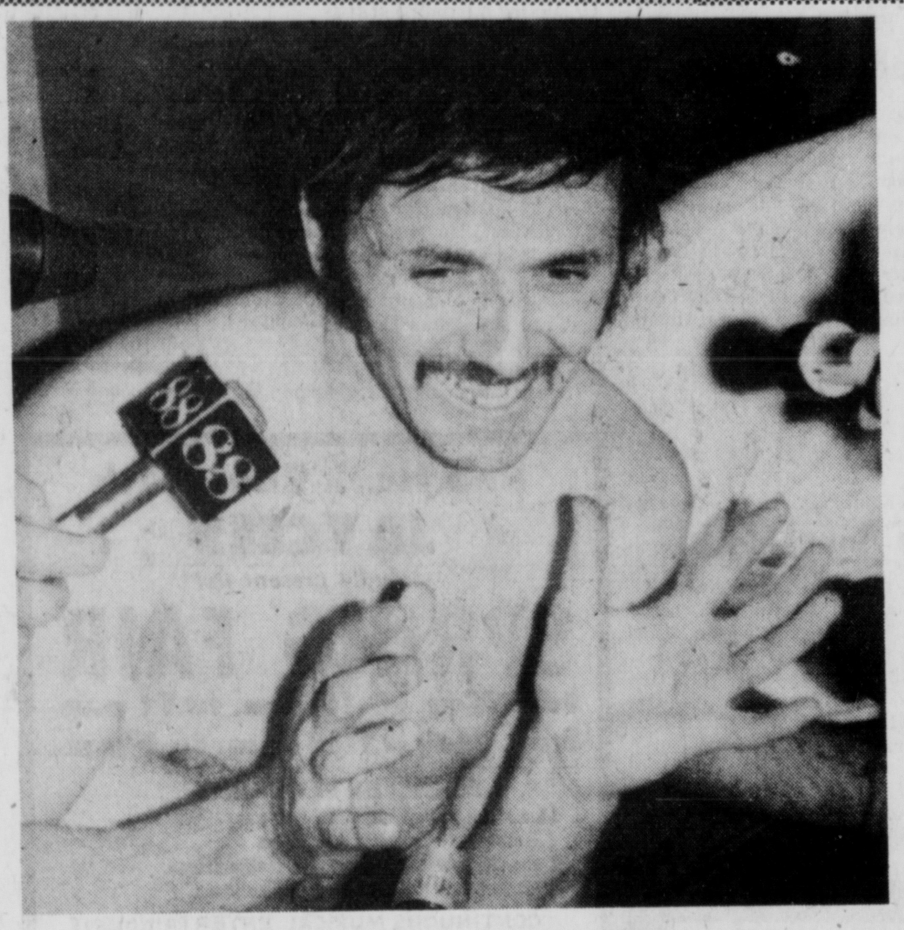

In 1914, at age 26, he won the U.S. championship in the American All-Around, a series of 10 events performed in a single afternoon.

Then he took up handball and played with championship style until he was 70.

He was married in 1926 to Elizabeth Dunlap. Brundage, when his first wife died in 1971, married for a second time at the age of 85 in 1973, taking as his bride Miss Reuss, with whom he became acquainted during the Munich Olympics.

Another Miracle For Islanders?

By RICK GOSSELIN
UPI Sports Writer

The Stanley Cup no longer runneth over with Philadelphia Flyer poise.

And with that loss of composure by the reigning champions, the New York Islanders are suddenly within grasping range of their second straight playoff miracle and a possible berth opposite the Buffalo Sabres in the Cup finals.

The Islanders shocked the Flyers for the second time in two nights Thursday with a 5-1 victory to close the gap in their best-of-seven semifinals series to three games to two. The sixth game will be played Sunday afternoon at the Islanders' rink in Uniondale, N.Y..

While the Islanders were crippling the Flyers in Philadelphia, Buffalo was wrapping up its first finals berth ever in just its second Stanley Cup appearance with a 4-3 triumph over the Montreal Canadiens to end their semifinal series in six games.

The Islanders were given up for dead after falling behind three games to none in the quarterfinal round with Pittsburgh, but rallied to win four straight and the right to advance as lambs to the slaughter against Philadelphia.

The Flyers led the Islanders to the guillotine in the first three games, relying on poise and their reputation as the league's best team to overwhelm the New Yorkers. But Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero is still waiting for his team to administer the fatal blow.

Wednesday night the Islanders staved off elimination by winning 4-3 in overtime and Thursday it was as if the two teams had exchanged uniforms as New York continually tangled the Flyers in a web of tight checking in the Philadelphia zone.

"This team is confident," said New York center Jude Drouin. "In the last series, people had doubts about us but we didn't. It seems like people don't have the confidence in us —but we have it and that's all that counts.

The Flyers lost their backbone when, with the Islanders holding a 1-0 lead, Billy Harris unnerved Vezina Trophy winner Bernie Parent midway through the second period with a slap shot from the blue line which trickled into the net off the goaltender's glove.

Parent, the personification of poise during the regular season, seemed to develop jelly knees after that goal and staggered through the rest of the game as the Islanders scored three more times in just a dozen more shots.

Drouin made it 3-0 on a partial breakaway and Bob Nystrom scored his first goal of the postseason on a clean breakaway before the Flyers shucked off the embarrassment of being shut out in their own rink on Bob Kelly's goal with just 4:50 left in the game.

Garry Howatt scored New York's fifth goal with less than two minutes to play and the Islanders capped their on-ice celebration when rookie Clark Gillies pummeled ruffian Dave Schultz during a fight in the game's final minute.

"The guys have shown a lot of courage," New York Coach Al Arbour said of his charges. "They keep working. They've done everything I've asked them to do."

Buffalo scored three goals in the first period and another in the second to saddle Montreal with its final loss of the season. Craig Ramsay scored an unassisted short-handed goal just 2:05 into the game and he Sabres were suddenly in command.

Rick Martin, Peter McNab and Jim Lorentz tallied to give Buffalo a 4-1 advantage at the end of 40 minutes and then held on as Guy Lafleur and Pete Mahovlich scored in the final session to make it respectable.

"Whoever it is we play, we're just lucky—no, make that happy—to be here," said Buffalo Coach Floyd Smith, whose team must now sit and wait for a challenger.

If New York wins the other semifinal series, Buffalo would retain its home ice advantage but if Philadelphia should win, the Sabres would only have three games in seven at home.

SPORTS TODAY

Forward For The Bulls

OAKLAND (UPI) — Though it's the high-scoring forwards who command most of the attention for the Chicago Bulls and Golden State Warriors, the guard matchups are proving vital in their NBA Western Conference championship series.

Norm Van Lier scored 35 points as Chicago gained a 2-1 edge Sunday and fellow guard Jerry Sloan sparkled in all departments Thursday night to boost the Bulls to an 89-79 victory for a 3-2 in the best-ofseven series.

Sloan, on a night when many other stars seemed sluggish following Tuesday night's tension-filled Warrior victory, was all over the court, collecting 18 points, 10 rebounds and a pair of steals.

"I don't know if I've ever seen a guy with more intensity than Jerry," said Bulls Coach Dick Motta, who hopes to wrap up the series with a home court win Sunday afternoon.

Sloan scored 11 points in the first quarter as Chicago jumped to a 4-0 lead and was never behind while forging to a 25-20 advantage at the end of the period.

"They were giving me a lot of shots and I just made up my mind to take them," said Sloan, who indicated the Warriors' defense was conducive to scoring opportunities for the guards.

"The way they've played us all series," he explained, "is rotating around, trying to cover our forwards. It's up to Norm and me to take more shots."

While Sloan and forward Chet Walker, who had 21 points, took care of the offense, the Bulls' typically tenacious defense held the Warriors to 37 per cent shooting and prevented the home club from running and penetrating.

"Our history is that we get stronger as series go on," Motta pointed out. "With Nate (Thurmond) and Tom (Boerwinkle) rested, we had strength in the middle and were able to take away the inside."

Thurmond, playing only 21 minutes off the bench against his former teammates, grabbed a game-high 13 rebounds and Boerwinkle added 10.

"We've got to bust our bodies," said Thurmond, "because we don't want to come back here."

Warriors Coach Al Attles hopes to receive more intensity, a la Sloan and Thurmond, from his club in game six.

"If there's one game for which we come out with fire in our eyes, I hope it's Sunday," Attles said. "All we can do is play as hard as we can. We've got to do what they did tonight. We just can't let them dictate the tempo."

Rick Barry, who led the Warriors with 20 points, blamed himself for the defeat. He made only 1-of-10 shots in the half and finished with 8-for-26.

"If I had a good start, I'm sure that would have picked things up," Barry offered. "I played lousy. We relied too much on our outside shooting and it let us down."

Jones Boy Clicking

By IRA MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

All it will take is a few more games like Thursday night and Randy Jones may find himself pitching for the Cincinnati Reds instead of against them.

Jones is starting to achieve success pitching for the San Diego Padres this spring and one thing that means for sure is he had better keep his bags packed.

That's because the Reds and Padres have had something going the last couple of years that reminds folks of the New York Yankees and Kansas City A's in the 1950's.

Back then, whenever the Yankees needed a player, they called Kansas City, and unfailingly they wound up with people like Roger Maris, Enos Slaughter and Ralph Terry.

The last couple of seasons, when the Reds needed pitching help, all they had to do was call San Diego, and they got the same response the Yankees used to get from the A's. First, Fred Norman came to help in '73 and last year it was Clay Kirby.

Now maybe the Reds will start asking about Jones, particularly after what he did to them Thursday night—a four-hit, 3-0 shutout victory.

Jones, helped by three double plays, faced only 28 batters as he raised his record to 4-2 and lowered his earned run average to 1.62. Last season, as a 24year-old rookie, the left-hander lost 22 games.

"I saw him in his last couple of starts last year, he was doing all his pitching with his arm instead of using his body," says Tom Morgan, the San Diego pitching coach.

Morgan spent the winter working with Jones and changing his delivery, and now Jones says, "I've got a more positive attitude."

Gene Locklear had four straight hits and Dave Winfield contributed his seventh homer to help Jones beat Cincinnati.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta edged San Francisco 3-2, Pittsburgh defeated the New York Mets 4-2 and Philadelphia topped St. Louis 6-2. In the American League, Detroit beat Milwaukee 6-4, Texas stopped Kansas City 5-3 and California blanked Oakland 5-0.

Braves 3, Giants 2

Atlanta's Tom House, best known as the relief pitcher who caught Hank Aaron's 715th home run in the bullpen, came in to get the final two outs and end a ninth inning rally that preserved Ron Reed's victory over San Francisco. Dusty Baker drove in two runs for the Braves with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Pirates 4, Mets 2

Bruce Kison got some help from his defense in limiting the Mets to seven hits. Kison also bounced a two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the fifth inning to snap a 1-1 tie. Bill Robinson doubled, homered and scored twice for Pittsburgh.

Phils 6, Cards 2

Garry Maddox, playing his second game for Philadelphia following his trade from the Giants, doubled twice, tripled, scored twice and drove in three runs in the victory over St. Louis. Greg Luzinski drove in the other three runs for the Phillies and Jim Lonborg pitched seven scoreless innings for the win.

Tigers 6, Brewers 4

Rookie Dan Meyer homered to snap a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning and John Hiller struck out seven batters —six in a row —in a brilliant three inning relief stint as Detroit beat Milwaukee. It was Meyer's second home run, both gamewinners, and Hiller's fourth save. Meyer had three hits, including a single that started a four-run rally in the fourth. Rangers 5, Royals 3

Willie Davis hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to tie the game at 3-3 and then drove in the winning run for Texas in the ninth with a single. Singles by Cesar Tovar and Len Randle preceded Davis' hit. Jeff Burroughs followed with a double to score Randle.

Angels 5, A's 0

Nolan Ryan struck out 10 and limited Oakland to four hits as he pitched his second shutout and won his sixth game. It was the 70th 10-strikeout-or-better performance of Ryan's career. Mickey Rivers singled twice and tripled and drove in three runs for California.

Ashe Had Right To Be Proud

DALLAS (UPI) — Arthur Ashe was fairly proud of himself and he had a right to be.

Ashe came into the $100,000 World Championship Tennis tournament as the top seed but a half-hour into his quarterfinal match with Great Britain's Mark Cox Thursday night Ashe found himself down one set and trailing 0-3 in the second.

"The good thing about tonight," said Ashe, after disposing of Cox, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 76, "is that I didn't choke. When you are down like that, it is easy to panic. You can say to yourself, 'What can I do?' and throw it in, but, I didn't."

Ashe's victory puts him into tonight's semifinals of the WCT against another proponent of the strong serve, Australia's John Alexander.

Alexander crunched Roscoe Tanner Thursday night, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

In the other semifinal tonight, Rod Laver, the second seed, will meet third seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden. The championship with $50,000 going to the winner will be held Sunday.

Cox could do nothing wrong in the opening set against Ashe and it appeared the first upset of the tournament was about to be instigated. But after breaking Ashe's serve early in the second set, Cox finally began to show he was human.

"I was surprised to be up a set and leading 3-0 in the second," Cox said. "But I didn't feel that good about it because Arthur had played some loose shots. I knew when he got going it would be a different story."

Ashe, who now has defeated Cox 10 out of 12 times, was not so sure.

"I really did not feel like I was in the match until I won the second set," Ashe said.

Alexander had reason to be happy with his match since he blasted Tanner off the court and appeared to be in good form for his date with Ashe, whom he has defeated only three times in 10 meetings.

Miller's Putter Cooled

DALLAS (UPI) — Johnny Miller led the field in the $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic one day too early.

Miller, on the verge of overhauling Jack Nicklaus as the tour's leading money winner, shot a seven-under par 64 in the Nelson pro-am. But in the opening round Thursday Miller's putter cooled.

"I putted poorly," he said, haggard from the Texas heat and long fairways. "If I had putted like I did yesterday, I would have had a 63 or a 64."

But Miller held a three-under par 68 instead, three strokes off the pace of hometown pro Bruce Crampton.

"There are no good lies in the fairways," Miller said. "I've never seen the fairways this long."

Crampton, who is well familiar with the par 35-36-71, 6,983 yard Preston Trail course, had his opinion.

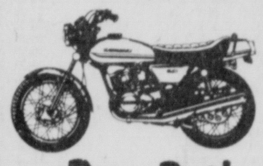

"The greens need to be cut," he said. "The pins were about normal from what we've seen this year. Now we see the course set up about as tough as they can make it all four days."

Crampton won the Houston Open ast week and turned in a solid five-under par 66 Thursday. He birdied the 425 yard, par four fifth hole with a nine foot putt and then reeled off three straight birdies starting on No. 9. He closed with a 10 foot birdie putt on No. 18.

"I've had three solid rounds (he closed Houston at 66 and 69)," the native Australian said. "One advantage of playing here—I get home cooked meals and sleep in my own bed. But if anything, it's a little more difficult. You see a lot of friends and they expect to be recognized.

"I'd really like to win this tournament. It's good many people are walking around with you and you know they're on your side."

Wallkill, PB Lead

WALLKILL

Victory meant first place for both Wallkill and Pine Bush High Schools Thursday in a pair of UCAL makeup games. The Panthers moved past idle New Paltz in Division III with an 8-0 win over Marlboro, and the Bushmen defeated Onteora, 7-4 to gain a tie with Liberty in Division I.

Bob Lee fired a four-hit shutout to make the Panthers' task easy. While he blanked the Dukes, Wallkill grabbed a quick lead in the first on a two-run single by Mike Mercado. The winners chased loser George Casey with another run in the fourth then pounded reliever Mike Mahusky for four in the fifth. Brian Wicks homered for the now 6-2 Panthers as Marlboro dropped to last in the fivision with a 3-3 record.

Pine Bush rallied to tie the game with three runs in the fourth then went ahead for keeps with three more in the fifth to raise its record to 3-4. Mike Della Pia, after allowing three OCS runs in the first inning, settled down to complete a seven hitter and get the decision.

The Indians, falling a game and a half off the pace in Division II collected four of their hits in the first but only scored once after that on Guy Turck's homer in the fourth. Al Johnson went six innings and took the loss.

KHS Retains Lead

KINGSTON

Kingston High remained in first place in the DCSL Thursday by beating visiting Spackenkill, 7-2 behind a three-hitter by Marco Tiano.

The Maroons jumped on Mike Russell for four runs in the opening inning, and for a moment things looked like a repeat of KHS' previous 24-0 rout over this team earlier in the season. But Russell settled down, and Tiano gave up two walks and two hits in the fourth inning to give the Maroons a little concern over a narrow 4-2 lead.

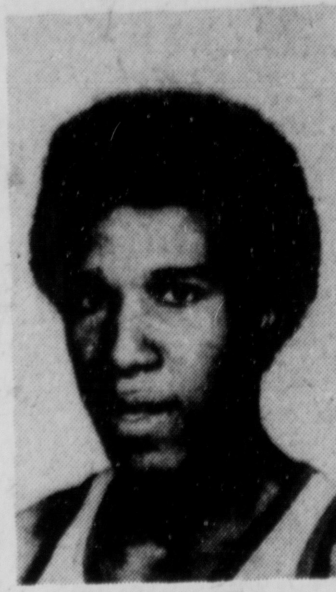

Doubles by Val Galm, Rich Bell and Lou Eccleston and a single by Paul Runte led to three more Kingston runs in the fifth, however, and Tiano put the lid on things by retiring the last nine batters consecutively.

Steve Hughes, Duane Carey and Bell ripped two-baggers in the first, and Cliff Lyons added a single in the Maroons' early outburst.

Tiano finished with ten strikeouts and three walks, while Russell, who also lasted the distance, walked one and fanned six.

Hardship Case

All American Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, a 6-5 forward who averaged 30 points a game last season, was among 20 players declared eligible Thursday as a hardship case in this month's NBA draft. Dantley, a junior, is the third Notre Dame player to secure hardship status in the last two seasons. (UPI)

Upset For Paltz

WOODSTOCK

An inspired New Paltz High School golf varsity mounted a brilliant team effort here Thursday to shatter Onteora High's nine-game winning streak, 162-161 and throw the Indians into a tie with Rondout High at 7-1 for the Ulster County Athletic League lead.

A pair of 40s by the Siegel brothers—Rich and Gary—and 41s by Jeff Mackey and Mark Robertson was just enough to nip the John Carlson-les Onteora squad. Carlson, who has averaged 37.5 per round at Woodstock this season, was out of action because of illness.

Jeff Buton, the part-time OCS player, led the losers with 38. Bill Kennedy posted 41 and Mike Powers and Jon Elwyn, 41 each.

The OCS setback leaves four teams still deeply involved in the UCAL race—Onteora, Rondout, New Paltz and Coleman. The key match in the race may be the upcoming Rondout at Woodstock duel.

Good and Bad For SHS

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties High School's girls softball team was on the wrong end of a 20-9 score at Arlington in recent action. Only days before, the Sawyer team was routing Roosevelt, 30-9.

Peggy Hain and Nancy Havlak laced two hits apiece in the one-sided loss to Arlington. The winners pounded out 20 hits apiece to Saugerties pitchers. Ginger Swart took the defeat.

Nancy Pavlak was the big hitter in the 30-9 Sawyer win. She had five hits in six trips and scored five times. Trina Van Tassel cracked three hits for SHS. Ginger Swart was the winning pitcher in this one.

Barb Myers: Five Wins

KINGSTON

Barbara Myers pitched her fifth victory of the season, a sharp 2-hit, 15-5 triumph over Spackenkill, as Kingston High held a tie for first place with John Jay in the Dutchess County Girls Softball League. She has lost one game.

Lori Eaton led Kingston's 13-hit attack with a single and homer. Sandy Mancuso, Barbara Myers and Diana Baker each had two hits. Laura Dosched doubled for the losers.

JAC, Ellies Tennis Winners

KINGSTON

Tennis teams from Coleman and Ellenville highs were victorious in UCAL matches Thursday as the Statesmen topped Red Hook, 4-1, and the Ellies whipped Fallsburgh, 3-2.

John Farrell beat Greg Martin, 8-4, and Kevin Kenyon topped Bill Hogan, 8-3, to give Colean the lead after the singles. Jeff Dewsnap and Dan McDonough wrapped it up with an 8-1 win over Ted Dewsnap and Dan Zaloga in first doubles.

Coleman's Bill Knott and Jeff Grayson downed Harold Davis and Don Tampone, 8-2 in the final doubles, and Red Hook's Greg Hansen took an 8-6 win from Paul Lyle in a singles battle.

The Ellies got a win from Stewart Eckert and Rich Bradford over Jerry Marcus and Randy Dill, 8-3 in first doubles to lock up their match. Dave Cooper topped Andy Qretsky, 8-1, and Jane Rosenstock beat Mike Quait, 8-5 for the other Ellenville points.

For the Comets, Ira Steingart won over Elliott Foo, 8-2, and Bob Scheinman and Willie Hauber defeated Brian Kunst and Guy Goldsmith, 8-3.

Coleman In Squeaker

KYSERIKE

Coleman High scored seven runs in the sixth, then choked off a Rondout High rally after four runs in the bottom of the seventh for a 12-10 Ulster County Girls Softball League victory.

Three Rondout errors after two puts in the sixth permitted Coleman to score five unearned runs. There were no extra basehits and several players had two hits.

Kathy Turck pitched the win for Coleman and Lynne Olson took the loss.

$11,292 Payoff For Trifecta

MONTICELLO

Holder of the sole ticket punched out in the third race trifecta at Monticello Raceway Thursday night was Jackie Butler of Kiamesha Lake, near Monticello. He pocketed a check for $11,292 for his $3 investment on a 7-8-4 combination.

Butler's good fortune involved Very Good Boy (37.60) driven by Warren Gabettie, the first under the wire. Second was the 30-1 longshot Sterling Bret. Rounding out the magic trio was Byliner, who went off at 8-1.

The $11,292 trifecta was the largest of the season at Monticello. The upstate New York track's record $3 trifecta payoff was $29,090.50 for a 5-8-2 combination on Jan. 3, 1974.

Police Hearing

NEW PALTZ

The New Paltz Board of Police Commissioners has scheduled a departmental hearing for suspended patrolmen Richard Thompson and Charles Walton for May 20 concerning alleged violations of departmental rules and regulations.

The pair were suspended from the department after Thompson fatally wounded Edward D. VanHorn, 26, of 41 Brewster Street, Kingston in an incident March 27.

At the time, Thompson and Walton, both off duty, were in a New Paltz bar where, according to authorities, VanHorn left the bar and was followed by Thompson and Walton. A foot chase ensued, which ended when VanHorn allegedly stabbed Thompson and Thompson shot VanHorn once in the neck.

An Ulster County Grand Jury has previously cleared Thompson of criminal charges in the matter. The Grand Jury did, however, hand up a sealed report on the incident last week.

Thruway Gas Leak

TOWN OF ULSTER

A section of the Ulster Hot Shoppe rest area on the Thruway was closed off Wednesday night and early Thursday when an underground gas leak was discovered near the gas pumps.

Ruby and Ulste Hose firemen as well as a Thruway maintenance crew were called to the scene to clean up the 300 to 500 gallon spill.

Thruway troopers said the spill apparently originated in a broken gas line. Immediate repairs were scheduled.

Long Distance. It's cheaper than you think.

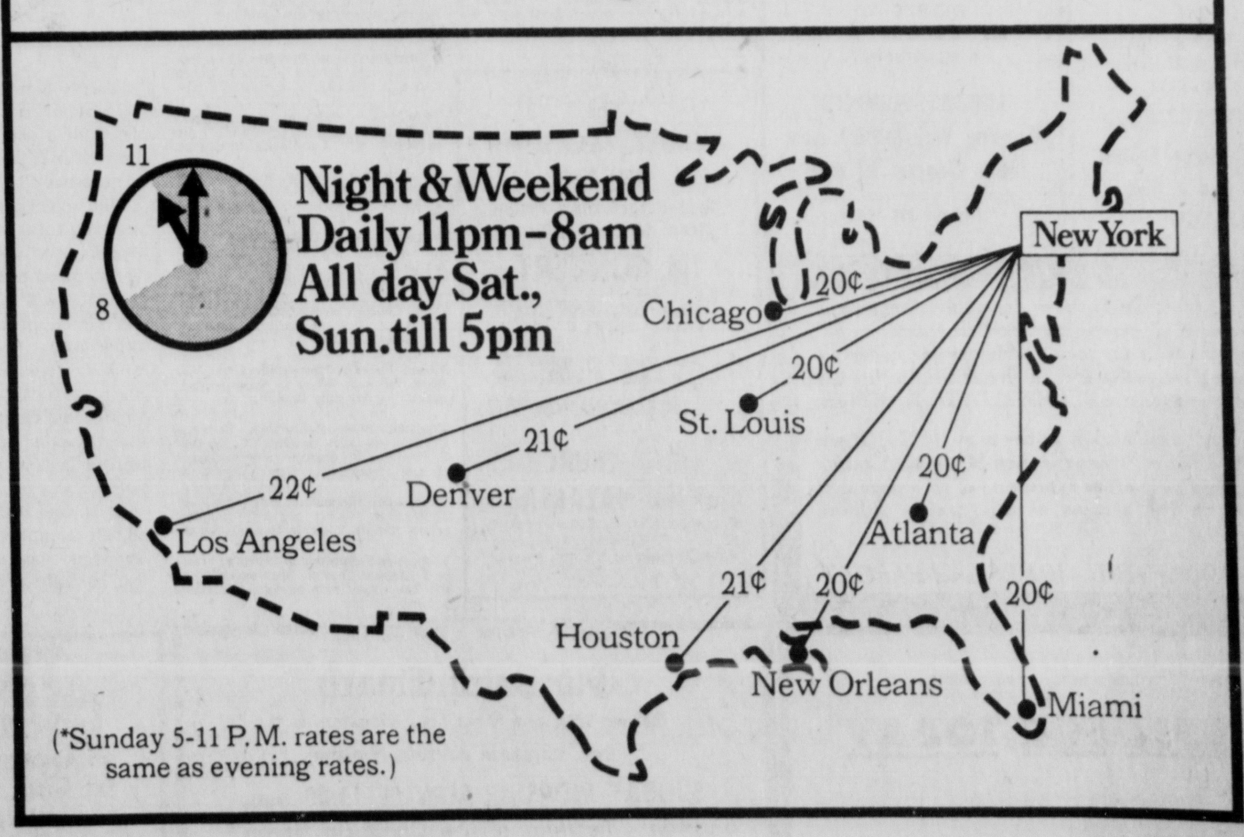

Calls you dial yourself, without operator assistance, are surprisingly cheap. Evening rates are 35% less than daytime rates. Night and weekend* rates are 60% less than daytime rates. When you dial direct, the new initial rate period anytime (day or night) is now one minute rather than three minutes. So you can have more control over your long-distance costs. Additional minutes cost less than the first minute.

Check the charts below for periods covered by the new rates and examples of the first-minute cost of some frequently dialed cities.

Deeming it impossible to do so personally, we wish to take this means of expressing heartfelt thanks to our friends and relatives for their individual and collective expressions of sympathy and understanding during the illness and bereavement of CHARLOTTE A. JONES.

The response for memorials in her name to the Organ Fund of the Clinton Avenue United Methodist Church was an extremely generous expression of assurance that her interest in the success of this project will be fulfilled.

Lebanese Government Seems Near Collapse

BEIRUT (UPI) — Premier Rashid Solh, fighting to save his crumbling, six-month-old government, met briefly today with President Suleiman Franjieh amid predictions his resignation was imminent.

However, after the 30 minute meeting, Solh said, "I did not submit my resignation to President Franjieh."

He refused to answer newsmen's questions and returned to his office.

Solh's 18-member coalition cabinet collapsed Thursday when seven right-wing ministers walked out protesting a breakdown of law and order in last month's street battles between Palestinian guerrillas and radical Phalangists.

Solh said late Thursday he would seek a vote of confidence in Parliament by stating his government's position toward the fighting, which left at least 150 persons dead and 300 wounded.

But the man tabbed as Solh's successor, former premier Rashid Karami, said, "I think Solh must be writing his letter of resignation now. Even before the resignations, the government was dead."

Asked whether he would resign, Solh said earlier Thursday, "I will go to the palace tomorrow and then you will know the result. As you may have noticed yesterday, I did not say I was optimistic."

The cabinet walkouts were led by the anti-Communist Phalangist Party which blamed Solh for not calling out the army during the fighting and not protecting Lebanese areas against Palestinian rocket attacks.

The Phalangists, primarily a Christian, rightist party, believe the Palestinian presence endangers Lebanese security because of the danger of Israeli raids launched in retaliation for Palestinian guerrilla forays.

Power in Lebanon is shared between Christians and Moslems, with each making up about half the population.

The left-wing, pro-Palestinian bloc in Solh's cabinet charged three Phalangists with starting last month's fighting in an attempt to provoke a crackdown on the Palestinians and oust Solh in favor of a more right-wing government.

Several clashes in recent years have pitted the Palestinians against either the Phalangists or the army. Premier Amin Hafez resinged in the wake of the last serious encounter in May, 1973.

Palestinian guerilla fighters were expelled from Jordan after bitter fighting in 1970 and 1971, when they openly challenged the authority of King Hussein.

Sex Discrimination At N.Y.C. Restaurants!

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed discrimination charges against 11 of the city's finest restaurants for their failure to hire waitresses and plans a $2.4 million federal suit against the establishments.

The organization said Thursday that complaints have been filed with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the State Division of Human Rights against the Restaurant Association and the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union.

ACLU Women's Rights Project Director Kathleen Peratis said the restaurants named in the suit were Sardi's, Forum of the 12 Caesars, Le Cote Basque, Caravelle, Sign of the Dove, Charly O's, Lutece, 21 Club, Four Seasons, Maxwell's Plum and Le Manoir.

She said a suit would be filed in federal court seeking $2.4 million in damages for waitresses Jeane King and Kathyrn Smith and all other women in their class as soon as the ACLU receives endorsement to sue from the EEOC.

The suit will ask that the restaurants be ordered to hire only qualified waitresses until the percentage of women on their staffs equals the percentage of women in the available work force, which she estimated at 50 percent.

Ms. Peratis said the union was included in the suit because it "has done nothing to stop those restaurants who want to maintain all-male preserves."

Ms. King and Ms. Smith told a news conference they applied for jobs as waitresses at all 11 restaurants in January and were rejected at all.

Ms. King said the managers at Le Manoir and Lutece flatly told her they did not hire women.

"They just gave me a big smile and said they were sorry," she said.

Kniffen Guilty Plea To Spiegel Burglary

KINGSTON

Bruce A. Kniffen, 21, of Woodstock pleaded guilty in Ulster County Court Wednesday to third degree burglary in connection with an alleged burglary last May at the Spiegel Brothers Paper Co. warehouse on Ulster Avenue Mall.

Kniffen's plea was to the top count of a three-count indictment handed up last year which also charged him with second degree grand larceny and first degree criminal possession of stolen property.

Kniffen was arrested last May 28 by city police along with Robert Bond, 23, no address available, as the pair were allegedly unloading a van full of goods stolen from the warehouse at the rear of The Palace, 474 Broadway.

Joseph W. Rapp, 25, of 114 Clinton Avenue, part owner of The Palace, was later indicted in the case and was found guilty last week after trial of third degree burglary and third degree grand larceny.

Kniffen's plea Wednesday before County Judge Raymond J. Mino was accepted on the recommendation of First Assistant DA Michael Kavanagh, who said that Kniffen had cooperated with authorities, which should be taken into account at the time of sentencing, set for June 11. Kniffen was represented by attorney Michael B. Rosenblatt.

Wallkill Budget Soundly Defeated

WALLKILL

Voters of the Wallkill Central School District this week rejedted a proposed $5.2 million 1975-76 school budget by a decisive 533-297 margin.

The rejection of the budget and the total vote of 830 were in sharp contrast to 1974. when voters passed a $4.75 million budget by a 316-209 vote.

Voters approved 439 to 391 a proposal to appropriate $5,000 each for the Wallilll Library and the Plattekill Reading Center on Route 32 in Modena. Similar sums were approved last year by a 307-218 vote.

A proposition to spend $9,000 for middle school band uniforms was defeated 433-390. A call for $5,000 for uniforms last year also lost, 367 to 358.

Incumbent Joseph Dembroski, appointed to fill the seat of the late C. William Chesser, lost in his bid to fill the one year remaining in Chesser's term. Dembroski lost out to Mrs. Beatrice Elliott by a 452-377 margin.

Incumbent Michael Lembo Jr. won another five-year term polling 339 votes to 254 for Mrs. Beverly Santarelli and 214 for Mrs. Elaine Perrone.

Incumbent William Schwarz was unopposed for another five-year term, polling 645 votes. All new members take over July 1.

Altogether the committee approved $25 billion of the administration's $29.9 billion weapons request.

Stennis emphasized that although the cut appeared large at first, half of it was illusory.

Radar Image Spotted

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Two air traffic controllers said they saw the radar image of a reported unidentified flying object that terrified the pilot of a small plane.

Julio Interian and Emilio Estanol said Thursday they watched on two separate screens from the control of Benito Juarez International airport as "an unidentified object" sped along at the side of a tiny Piper plane.

The plane's pilot, Carlos Antonio de los Santos Montiel, 23, said three UFO's accompanied him for about 10 minutes as he flew at 15,000 feet towards the airport Saturday.

Frank Lavery (R) practices his pancake flipping routine as the Kingston Rotary Club prepares for a Mother's Day breakfast Sunday, May 11, from 8 to 1 p.m. in the Bailey Junior High School cafeteria. Waiting for his share of "all the pancakes you can eat" is Bill Stevens. The menu consists of orange juice, coffee, tea, milk, sausages and pancakes. Tickets may be purchased from area merchants or at the door. (Freeman photo)

Illegal Search

KINGSTON

An indictment charging Edward Wright, 23, of Kingston with fifth degree criminal possession of a controlled substance (heroin) was dismissed Thursday in Ulster County Court at the request of District Attorney Francis J. Vogt.

In asking Judge Raymond J. Mino to dismiss the indictment against Wright, Vogt explained that all evidence in the case had been ordered supressed as a result of a ruling by Greene County Judge John J. Fromer, before whom a suppression hearing was held previously. Fromer ruled that the evidence was taken during an illegal search of Wright's room at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

Wright was represented by Attorney Francis Martocci.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your financial aspects continue to be promising, if you use common sense. Don't take a flyer on anything risky.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something may happen today that will slow your initative on an important undertaking. You'll have enough determination to carry on.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It may be awkward, but if yo want something you loaned returned, you'll have to make a direct demand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) What a friend has to say to you today may be a bitter pill to swallow. Later, you'll agree it was for your own good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be persistent in pursuing your goals today. An event may overshadow your horizons, but it will cause only a temporary delay.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll encounter a small but difficult problem today. If you base your reaction on past similar experience, you'll resolve it easily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In business dealings today, don't be backward about insisting upon the quality you're paying for. Be ready to haggle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You and a partner will be faced with a difficult and crucial decision. It's up to you to stand up for what is right. Your partner may wilt under pressure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before you invest in a new piece of equipment, try to make-do with what you have. Your Yankee ingenuity could save you $$$.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A meeting begun in a light vein may prove to be very important later when you and an old friend find you share an interest in something vital.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A family problem for the past weeks will start to fade as those involved begin to see things in perspective.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take some time today to weedout plans you now know to be unworkable. You'll be able to concentrate more on important goals.

Success is more likely for you this year if you put to good use lessons learned from painful past experience. You now know what should be discarded.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams

UNSHAVEN: (Q.) I think it would be fascinating to have a girl with furry legs—a girl who doesn's shave. All these dumb girls in my high school shave their legs.

I have not found any girl I have dated that will stop shaving her legs for me. Can you give me any suggestions? A girl with furry legs could really turn me on. — Hunting in Mississippi.

(A.) Shaving the legs is merely a custom for women—just as shaving the face is for men. Along with the increase in male beards, we may soon see a decrease in women shaving their legs. In fact, a number of women's liberationists are refusing to shave, and unshaven legs are common in Europe.

Until high school girls in general change their ways, you are not likely to find one who doesn't shave. In hunting for a girl, however, there are many factors more important to look for than whether or not the girl shaves her legs.

NO MORE: (Q.) Peg and I went together for three years. We loved each other. Then last summer she and her family went South for a vacation and when she came back she told me we weren't going together any longer.

She didn't tell me why. I have tried everything, but she won't go out with me. Can you help me?—Still Hoping in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Yes, but not to get Peg back. I can help you by assuring you that it is over, and you are spinning your wheels trying to change that fact. Spend some effort where it may count—on some other girl.

Win at Bridge

Winners Try to Avoid Traps

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Almost all bridge players feel that the gods of chance take particular delight in setting traps for them. The losing player falls or even dashes into these traps; the winner finds ways to avoid them.

South starts off by seeing dummy's king of diamonds clobbered by East's ace. Diamonds are continued and he ruffs the third lead.

The winning player notes that the hand will be a cinch if trumps break 2-2 or the ace of hearts is held by West. Then he asks himself, "What can I do if neither of those nice things happens?"

He sees he can afford one round of trumps just in case all four are going to show up in one hand. So he cashes his ace of trumps and everyone follows. Then he leads a heart. East's ace captures dummy's queen and a club comes back.

South wins this and then starts a successful cross ruff. Heart to the king, ruff a heart, cash the second high club, ruff a club, ruff dummy's last heart, smile and claim since with two tricks to go he still holds the queen of trumps and a club while dummy's two cards are the king and 10 of trumps.

U.S., Castro May End 14 Years of Hostility

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both President Ford and Cuban Premier Fidel Castro are apparently ready to take steps toward ending 14 years of hostility between the two countries.

The White House Thursday recognized Castro's apparent gesture, conveyed through Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., toward a thaw in the 14-year cold war.

McGovern was in Havana for four days and returned to Washington Thursday night.

McGovern told reporters accompanying him in Havana that Castro will consider returning $2 million in ransom flown to Cuba on a hijacked U.S. jet in 1972 and releasing nine Americans held in Cuban jails.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Castro "seems to have accepted what the White House has referred to as the mutuality of obligation in improving relations between Cuba and the United States."

Castro himself told American reporters accompanying McGovern, "We wish for the people of the United States a wish of friendship."

Nessen responded: "The United States has said we see no future in perpetual antagonism" toward Cuba. "The White House is aware (of Castro's remarks) and notes that he seems to have accepted what the White House has referred to in the past as the mutuality of obligations," Nessen said.

That phrase was most recently used by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in a speech in Houston March 1.

"We have taken some symbolic steps to indicate that we are prepared to move in a new direction if Cuba will," Kissinger had said. "Fundamental change cannot come, however, unless Cuba demonstrates a readiness to assume the mutuality of obligation and regard upon which a new relationship must be founded."

Nessen said he was "not announcing a change in U.S. policy toward Cuba" because a number of significant differences remain between the two countries.

Nessen also said the State Department is willing to discuss Castro's requests for American shipments of food and medical supplies, but that U.S. trade sanctions will remain in effect until the Organization of American States lifts its embargo.

The OAS is meeting in Washington this week but earlier decided against calling up the question of Cuban sanctions at this meeting.

McGovern said Castro's offer to consider returning the ransom and the prisoners would have to be met by the end of the U.S. trade embargo.

"I told him that they are holding a $2 million ransom brought here on a Southern Airways plane hijacked in November 1972," McGovern said. "He told me he would seriously consider returning the money although he could not give me a definite commitment on it.

"I discussed the matter of American political prisoners of which there are now nine in the country. He said they were conspirators against the Cuban governnment, but to help the position of friends of Cuba in the United States he will consider releasing some or all of these nine political prisoners.

"...I would not say the Senate and American people are ready for restoring relations, but we can begin taking steps," McGovern said.

"One reason I favor renewed relations is that it will bring about a more balanced situation. Ending the policy of embargo is a way to reduce Soviet influence, not increase it."

Rebate Checks Start Coming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first batch of 1974 tax rebate checks are in the mail.

Although some regional Internal Revenue Service offices mailed out their checks earlier in the week, the bulk of the first batch of 1974 tax rebates, worth $1.7 billion, went out today.

Officials hope the money — -part of a tax cut package signed in March by President Ford —will be spent by consumers on new cars, appliances, clothing and other goods. It is hoped that this will encourage production and create jobs for some of the country's 8 million unemployed.

If the 66.8 million Americans who are expected to receive the $8.1 billion in rebates use the money to pay bills and put into savings accounts, the recession could drag on for months, officials said.

The checks —between $100 and $200 for most taxpayers — will go first to those who filed their tax returns early this year. Those who filed closer to the April 15 deadline will not receive their checks until June or early July.

Taxpayers who filed early and are also due a tax refund will get their refund and rebate checks separately. Late filers will get only one check with a note explaining how much is rebate and how much is refund.

Other benefits of the tax cut package include lower withholding on 1975 federal taxes and a $50 bonus payment to Social Security recipients.

Double up, America.
